Agnew Scores 'Lies'

. . . Allegations Of Payoffs Denounced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew denounced as "damned lies" allegations involving him in political payoffs from Maryland contractors, and said Wednesday he has no intention of resigning or even temporarily stepping aside.

Agnew said the normal secrecy of federal investigations apparently does not apply in his case, then he added:

"I have no intention to be skewered in this fashion and since I have no intention to be so skewered I've called this press conference to label as false and scurrilous and malicious these rumors, these assertions and accusations that are being circulated."

Agnew appeared somber and somewhat angry as he met with newsmen to break a self-imposed silence on the published accusations.

"Let me say right now, I have no expectation of being indicted and I am not going to face any contingent thinking of that type at this time," he declared.

The nation's second highest elected official said "I have not" when asked if he was giving any thought to resigning, even temporarily. President Nixon, he said, has expressed confidence in him.

Agnew said repeatedly throughout the 31-minute news conference that he had nothing to hide and that his lawyers would decide on the appropriate way to make his personal records available to the U.S. attorney's office in Baltimore.

However, the vice president avoided answering whether he would personally appear before the federal grand jury. The investigators have not asked to see him personally, he said.

A source close to the investigation said prior to the news conference that Agnew would be invited to appear before the grand jury as a "normal courtesy." He said a subpoena was not contemplated at this time.

About the same time, a White House spokesman said the fact that Agnew is under investigation is no reason for the President to lose confidence in the vice president.

The investigation, directed by U.S. attorney George Beall in Baltimore, involves an alleged kickback scheme of political payoffs from private contractors in exchange for state and federal contracts while Agnew was governor of Maryland and later as vice president. A number of his close political associates in Maryland also are involved in the probe.

"I am denying them outright and I think I should be permitted this departure from normal language and labeling them, 'damned lies' " he said of the charges.

Asked if he ever received money for his personal use from firms holding contracts with the state or federal government, Agnew replied: "Absolutely not."

The viçe president said he was not aware of the specific charges against him. But at one point, he referred to the rumors which he said prompted a federal investigation of bribery, tax fraud, extortion and conspiracy allegations.

Asked specifically about published reports that a former member of his staff, Joseph B. Wolff, has told federal prosecutors that Agnew received kickbacks of $1,000 a week while governor, the vice president said he wasn't sure that any such charges were made.

"I would not respond to something I'm not certain of," he said.

However, a source close to the investigation confirmed the report, adding: "obviously, they get it from somebody who knows what is going on."

The vice president said that on the cocktail circuit, various allegations coming out of the investigation have "mentioned my name." He said he did not think it would be correct for him ersonally to contact the U.S. attorney's office, so he hired counsel.

Asked how he thought the investigation would affect his presidential chances, Agnew said such charges are always bothersome to public figures but that he was not thinking about them in that frame of reference at this time.

He denied that the matter had taken up a great deal of his work day since he was notified of the investigation and said he had asked for no access to FBI or Justice Department files that would allow him privileges not available to an ordinary citizen.

Agnew said his income tax returns hame been prepared by a professional accounting firm since 1967, which he noted was the year in which the allegations involving him were said to have first arisen.

Although the vice president said he is confident he will not be indicted, sources were quoted in published reports Wednesday as saying action on a proposed indictment of Agnew is expected within weeks.

PUFFING AWAY . . . Abrams testifies on bombing.

Red Viet Hospitals Considered Targets

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. commanders in Vietnam placed no restrictions on ground or air attacks against Viet Cong or North Vietnamese hospitals, a Senate committee was told Wednesday.

In direct testimony and letters, several Vietnam veterans said hospitals were often considered targets rather than area to be avoided as required by the Geneva Convention on warfare.

The testimony came before the Senate Armed Services Committee which for three weeks has been unraveling secret air and ground operations of the Indochina war from the mid-1960s to 1972.

The committee has also been trying to determine who ordered a dual reporting system in which 3,630 B52 bombing raids over Cambodia were falsely recorded as having occurred in South Vietnam.

Gen. Creighton Abrams, currently the Army chief of staff and a former commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, testified he carried out the false reporting system, but did not create it.

Abrams, who left Vietnam last summer, said, however, it might have been "courting disaster," not to have bombed concentrations of North Vietnamese troops in Cambodia while American troops were being withdrawn.

He acknowledged recommending the Cambodian bombing campaign in February 1969 and personally selecting B52 targets in that country.

Abrams said he created a special group of staff aides to work on the Cambodian bombing so that only a small number of officers knew about it.

In testimony on the hospitals, Alan Stevenson, a stockbroker from San Francisco and former Army intelligence specialist, said that while in Quang Tri province in 1969 he routeinly listed hospitals among targets to be struck by American fighter planes.

"The bigger the hospital, the better it was," he said.

Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, a member of the committee, also released a letter from former Army Capt. Rowan D. Malphurs of Miami, who said in 1969 and 1970 he worked as an interpreter of photographs made of areas where B52 bombs fell in Cambodia.

"I saw on several occasions where possible hospitals had been bombed . . . On another occasion I observed a red cross on a building that was partially destroyed by bombs," Malphurs wrote.

In another letter, Daniel T. Eismann of Caldwell, Idaho, a former helicopter crew chief, said in December 1968 he took part in a gunship operation against a Viet Cong hospital in Go Cong province along the coast of South Vietnam.

Former Air Force Capt. Gerald J. Greven, now a Delta Air Line pilot in Miami, said he personally called in air strikes against suspected locations of ememy hospitals.

Teachers' Pay 'Pathetic,' New LEA Director Claims

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The new executive director of the Lincoln Education Association says he's pleased with the quality of Lincoln's schools, but dissatisfied with what he calls "pathetically low" salaries and fringe benefits for its teachers.

"I couldn't be more comfortable with my son going into the first grade here this fall," said Robert F. Peterson, who became the LEA's executive officer on July 1.

"And I'm thunderstruck by the quality of the teachers I've dealt with already," he added.

But Peterson also said, in reference to Lincoln wage levels, that the "fringe benefit package has to be the most pathetic one of anyplace I know in the country."

Salaries, he added in an interview, "are pathetically low."

Top Priority

Thus, he said, he's placing at the top of his priority list for long-term goals "improving the lot of teachers in salaries, benefits and working conditions."

Next to that, and just as important, he said, will be "continued improvement of the educational establishment, providing the best education children can get any place."

The 37-year-old Peterson, who succeeds Ely Feistner as the LEA executive, comes to Lincoln after several years of experience in other state and local teacher associations.

His professional career began as an elementary teacher in Colorado, where he later worked as assistant director of the Colorado Education Association.

From Denver he went to New York as senior field representative for the New York State Teachers Association and then joined the Buffalo Teachers Federation as executive director.

He was assistant executive director for economic services in the Indiana State Teachers Association when he decided to give up management to return to the field and direct work with teachers.

Dual Goal

In Lincoln, he said, he intends to be an advocate in search of the dual goal of good schools and good compensation and working conditions for teachers.

"As an organization," he said of the LEA, "we should be very aggressive in achieving both goals.

"If we have to march on the Legislature to secure more funds for children's education we ought to do that," he said.

Locally, he said, the LEA should "join hands with the administration and the school board to examine every innovation and practice to make the schools better."

At the same time, said Peterson, "if we disagree we have a responsibility to oppose the administration and the board.

"I will do so loudly," he added.

One of the things he'll disagree on, he made clear, is compensation.

In other districts, he said, full cost of hospitalization insurance is a common fringe benefit for teachers, as are term life insurance and disability insurance.

As for salaries, which he also termed "pathetically low," Peterson said increases in the cost of living have eaten away a "good chunk" of gains in the past few years.

'Losing Ground'

"Teachers are losing ground," he said.

Peterson also said, however, that he might agree on new methods for teacher pay.

"I have no objection to merit pay," he noted. "When the administration and the LEA can find a fair way to evaluate teachers, I see no reason that an exceptionally qualified teacher should not have a merit wage."

But he saio from what he's picked up so far, he believes Lincoln's administrators "have not done a good job of evaluating teachers" thus far.

"The administration has the duty to weed out any teacher who is not qualified," he said.

Turning to other matters, Peterson said he's found teachers here filled with "excitement" and "high morale" who are "swept up working for a good school system" which is not afraid to innovate.

He also said he intends to involve Lincoln teachers heavily in politics, drawing on his experience as a lobbyist in Indiana, where he developed the first statewide political action program for the state association.

"Politicians make all the decisions that affect the teacher in the school," he said. "We must elect friends of education and 'un-elect' those who are not friends."

Boy Using Radio To Cry For Help

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Police raced against a dying radio battery Wednesday as they tried to find a little boy crying for help since Tuesday night.

The voice on the citizens' band radio said his name was Larry, that he was seven years old, that he was hurt and that his father was dead.

He said he and his father were rabbit hunting when his father collapsed in the driver's seat of their pickup truck. The boy said the pickup had overturned.

"We're losing communications fast," said Dave Doyle, a volunteer with an emergency radio group.

"It is a miracle that the radio is still working," said another volunteer, Clark Speakman. "A dry cell would have never lasted this long. It has to be a car battery that's keeping the radio going."

Police said they believed the transmission was coming from southeast of Albuquerque and east of Manzano Mountains toward Mountainair.

State police and National Guard planes were flyinr over the area with radios tuned to the signal.

The boy's voice said he and his father were on their way to Los Lunas south of Albuquerque when his father collapsed. Police dispatchers kept trying to get the boy to say if he was from Albuquerque, but could get no answer.

Kiernan Wins Reinstatement Fight

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Richard Kiernan has finally won his long battle to be reinstated as a highway engineer for the State of Nebraska.

U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom ruled Wednesday that State Highway Engineer Thomas Doyle's action in dismissing him violated Kiernan's right to freedom of speech.

Urbom ordered that Kiernan be reinstated in the position which he held when he was fired almost two years ago and ordered that he be paid $8,840 in damages.

The ruling came in response to a suit that had been inactive in U.S. District Court in Lincoln until a similar suit was settled in state courts.

That case was finally settled recently when the Nebraska Supreme Court upheld the State Court of Industrial Relations' decision that Kiernan's dismissal was a uniquely personal termination and not an industrial dispute.

Kiernan was fired on Sept. 7, 1971 by Thomas Doyle, who then had only recently been appointed to the post of State Highway Engineer.

The reason's given by Doyle were Kiernan had demonstrated "direct insubordination, conduct unbecoming a state employe."

Kiernan's firing took place after Kiernan criticized Doyle's appointment, saying that Doyle was not qualified for the position of State Engineer.

In a memorandum filed with his order, Judge Urbom said, "No evidence suggests that Kiernan's ability to perform his work was affected in fact by his opinion of Doyle's qualifications or Kiernan's expression of that opinion."

"Indeed, Doyle knew Kiernan, as far as the record shows, only through and with respect to Kiernan's union activities, until the time of the Sept. 1, 1971 meeting in Doyle's office.

Later in the memorandum Urbom wrote, "Evidence of actual disobedience is necessary for insubordination, at least where the working relationships are as they were in this case."

Urbom held that Kiernan's right to freedom of association was not violated, based on the State Court of Industrial Relations decision that Kiernan was not fired for "union activity" with the Nebraska Department of Roads Employes Association.

Judge Hears Differing Beef Predictions

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom was told Wednesday that a request for court action to lift the prize feeze raises the question of whether the government has the authority to stop "skyrocketing prices."

Paul Michael, a U.S. Department of Justice attorney argued that the decision to freeze the price of beef was made on a rational basis.

"You don't have to be an economist . . . to know that the housewife is being brudgeoned to death at the checkout counter," Michael said.

Michael's argument came during a hearing on a motion for a preliminary injunction sought by the Minden Beef Co. and the Greater New York Association of Meat and Poultry Dealers.

Robert Crosby, attorney for the meat packers, contended he finds it "incredible that the Cost of Living Council could take the view that increasing costs could be passed on to the consumer in the entire panoply of things consumers spend money on, but must hold the line on beef and veal."

"Starting next Monday it's beef and veal against everything a consumer can buy," Crosby claimed. After Aug. 12, prices can float with cost increases, except for beef and veal, which remain frozen.

The attorney's arguments capped more than six hours of testimony from two economists in a session that lasted past 9 p.m.

Presented by Crosby was Dr. Everett E. Peterson, a professor of agricultural economics at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln, and a columnist for The Nebraska Farmer.

"From an economic standpoint I can see no reason for the price freeze on beef," Peterson claimed. "However, I can see one for political reasons."

Peterson also claimed that the average American spends only abut 2.4% of his disposable income on beef, and that freezing price of beef could have only a slight psycological impact and no economic impact.

Peterson said he believes the decision to freeze the price of beef is arbitrary because it places beef producers at a competitive disadvantage with pork and poultry producers.

Peterson also claimed that although the number of cattle in the nation has continued to rise during the price freeze, fewer are being fed feed grain in preparation for market.

Presented by Michael was Glenn Nelson, an agricultural economist in the Cost of Living Council's food monitoring office.

Nelson testified that freezing the price of beef was a "logical choice."

"The thinking of the Cost of Living Council and the administration was that the consumer should not have to bear at one time all the price increases pent up in the economy," Nelson claimed.

Nelson said that the consumer spends more on beef than on pork and poultry, making it advantageous to the housewife to delay an increase in the price of beef.

In addition, Nelson said, U.S. Department of Agriculture statistics indicated that the price freeze on pork and poultry was having the effect of cutting production in the poultry and pork industries, but not the beef industires.

Nelson claimed that fewer eggs were being put in incubators, baby chicks were being killed and "pregnant pigs" were going to slaughter, supporting a contention that the supply of those meats was going to be cut, while the number of calves rose.

Inquiry Sparked By 'Cruel Hoax'

Ann Arbor, Mich. (UPI) — The Connecticut campaign manager for Sen. George S. McGovern's presidential bid said Wednesday an FBI inquiry into McGovern's 1972 campaign expenditures was sparked by a former campaign worker as a "cruel hoax."

Attorney Donald Tucker, in an interview with Connecticut radio station WNAB, said the U.S. General Accounting Office and the Connecticut secretary of state's office had both reviewed the McGovern campaign spending documents and had "given us a clean bill of health."

Tucker, who taped the interview at his Michigan law office, said the FBI inquiry of 1972 campaign spending at the request of Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox was prompted by "an allegation made by an individual who was less than a week a member of the staff."

"Frankly, his charges are materializing to be nothing more than a hoax, a cruel hoax, said Tucker, who refused to name the individual.

Appellate Court Overturns Ban On Bombing

(c) New York Times News Service

New York — A federal court of appeals overturned a lower court order enjoining the American bombing of Cambodia, and cleared the way for the bombing to continue legally until Aug. 15, the cut-off date established by Congress. (More on Page 2.)

Hospitals Bombed

Washington — Three veterans of the Vietnam war described to a Senate committee how they targeted and destroyed Viet Cong and North Vietnamese hospitals — a violation of international law, according to Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the Army Chief of Staff, who also testified before the Armed Services Committee. (More on Page 2.)

Medvedev Stripped Of Citizenship

London — Zhores A. Medvedev, a well-known Soviet geneticist and dissident writer, has been deprived of his citizenship and told not to return to his homeland when he completes a year of research in England. A Soviet spokesman in London said the action was taken against Medvedev because "his actions were incompatible with those of a Soviet citizen."

Airmail Stimulus Fails

Washington — A two-year-old program to stimulate use of airmail by improving service has failed, according to the General Accounting Office. Why? For one thing, faster service is not worth the extra cost to many businesses, whose mail usually goes out too late to qualify for the improved service.

Bread Prices Going Up

New York — This week's increases in bread prices — the first since the price freeze ended last month — are apparently just the beginning. The new prices, from 1 to 4 cents higher for a loaf of bread, do not reflect the historic high of $4 a bushel for wheat, the basic ingredient of bread, since four is generally bought 30 to 120 days in advance. Along with the prospect of still higher bread prices, consumers have another development to worry about: reports of shortages of some ingredients.

Agnew Hits 'Damned Lies'

Washington — Vice President Agnew denounced reports that he took kickbacks from government contractors in Maryland as "damned lies." Agnew is under investigation for possible bribery, tax fraud, extortion and conspiracy charges. (More on Page 1.)

Drinking In Focus

Washington — The Watergate investigation has focused new interest on an old topic: congressional drinking. Introduced at the hearings by John D. Ehrlichman, charges of congressional drunkenness angered some congressmen, embarresed others and revived the question of congressional drinking habits. The answer seems to be that most drank, some drink too much and a few are reformed alcoholics.

Destruction Extensive

Neak Luong, Cambodia — Despite official American reports that damage was "minimal," a tour of Neak Luong, the Cambodian town accidentally bombed by U.S. planes, revealed extensive destruction. Big chunks of the center of town, including reinforced concrete buildings, were demolished and large clusters of huts were obliterated, leaving empty fields strewn with rubble.

Quit-Bombing Order Reversed

New York (AP) — A federal appeals court panel reversed on Wednesday a U.S. District Court judge's order to stop American bombing of Cambodia.

The panel of Court of Appeals judges overthrew a July 25 decision by District Court Judge Orrin G. Judd in which he held the bombings were unconstitutional without congressional approval and ordered all such military operations stopped.

Acting Chief Judge William Hughes Mulligan of the appeals court had said a speedy decision by the three-judge panel was necessary because "time is of the essence" with the Aug. 15 deadline for cessation of the bombings only a week away.

The appeals panel's decision came only four hours after lawyers argued the case before the three judges. The ruling was by a 2-1 vote, with Mulligan and Judge William Timbers in the majority and Judge James Oakes dissenting.

The rulings were on a suit brought by Brooklyn Democratic Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman.

Asst. U.S. Atty. James D. Porter Jr. on Wednesday argued that the issue did not belong in court because Congress and the executive have responsibility for making "the prophetic determinations so characteristic" of the conduct of military affairs and foreign relations.

Porter argued that the "political branches" of the government must "chart the course to peace on the basis of a vast current of information which is not susceptible to the rules of evidence or other procedures devised by the courts and the bar to ascertain the truth of past events."

In explaining his decision, Judd wrote that the question was "whether Congress has authorized bombing in Cambodia after the withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam and the release of prisoners of war . . .

"That question is capable of judicial resolution . . . by applying traditional processes of statutory construction," he wrote. " . . . The extent of the power granted by Congress depends on the language used by Congress, not on the President's statements to Congress."

Hours before Judd's injunction was to take effect on July 27 the government obtained a stay from the U.S. Court of Appeals which set a hearing for Aug. 13. Later the hearing was moved up to Wednesday.

Last week Rep. Holtzman and four Air Force officers who had joined in the suit appealed to Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall to vacate the stay.

He refused and they appealed to Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas who did vacate the stay last Saturday. But hours later, Justice Marshall, with the backing of the rest of the court, reinstated the stay.

Earlier Wednesday, he refused to rescind the stay order, saying in effect that the appeal must come up through the Circuit Court before it would be considered by the Supreme Court.

Judge Mulligan said after the arguments in Wednesday's hearing that an oral opinion would be given later in the day and a written opinion by the end of the week.

This would give the losing side time to appeal to the Supreme Court.

In Boston, meanwhile, a U.S. District Court judge dismissed a similar suit brought by Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., on the grounds that the issues it raised were political rather than constitutional.

Judge G. Joseph Tauro observed that Congress and the President had reached a compromise on the Cambodia bombing question by agreeing on the Aug. 15 cutoff.

Beef Crunch Brings On More Rustling, Poaching

By The Associated Press

Rustling by roadside butchers and increased illegal deer hunting can be added to the list of effects of the continuing American beef crunch.

Rustlers crept under cover of darkness onto the farm of Raymond Youngman on the outskirts of De Soto, Iowa. They shot a steer and cut it in half.

"They tried to get it over a bank, but the rainy conditions made it too slick,'" said Sheriff John Wright of the roadside butchering. "They couldn't get the steer out of there, so they just let it lay."

Wright and an increasing number of law officials in cattle regions say they don't have enough men to patrol all the roads near where cattle are grazing and penned. Most states report increased patrols because of rustlng activity.

Much of the rustling appears to be the work of amateurs. In Louisiana, for example, there have been incidents of so-called "deep freeze killings" by people who rustle to supply their families with meat.

As reports of beef scarcity mounted, some Americans apparently decided to buck state laws and hunt down deer illegally.

Game Warden Grover Simpson in Austin, Tex., says his state is now undergoing the worst outbreak of illegal nighttime deer hunting he's ever seen. The deer season doesn't open until Nov. 17, and the state's 343 game wardens have been told to mount a major crackdown on illegal hunters.

Deer poaching in Pennslyvania is up 60 per cent this year, with high meat prices the only apparent explanation, according to the state game commission.

Game wardens in Maine are expecting increased poaching and are maintaining closer surveillance for illegal deer and moose hunting.

There was no letup in the beef-buying binge by shoppers, but the selection of the precious commodity was skimpy in many stores. Many retail outlets said shoppers seemed to be getting more interested in beef substitutes which many stores were pushing as beef got harder to obtain.

"Pork is number one here and is about the only meat that most people are buying, " said Jim Payne, store manager of a Super Foods Store in Montgomery, Ala.

Sacramento, Calif. retailers report increases of 30 to 40 per cent in the sales of fish. Wholesalers report a 40 per cent increase.

New York City Purchase Commissioner Marvin Gersten says he is exploring the possibility of buying live cattle for the city, sending them to slaughterhouses and processing the carcasses.

Three of Chicago's largest supermarket chains are already doing just that. The Jewel, National and Dominick chains say they are buying and slaughtering their own cattle in an attempt to keep beef on the shelves.

The practice is known as custom slaughtering and has proved a boon to some packing houses which closed last week in Chicago and other areas.

Planes Blast Rebel Positions

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — U.S. warplanes, pushing their attacks to the highest level in a month, blasted suspected positions of Communist-led insurgents Wednesday in an area 1½ miles from Phnom Penh airport.

The strikes were to cut off the escape of infiltrators who blew up the capital's international radio transmission station Tuesday night, or to smash possible troop buildups around the city.

Thirty infiltrators seized the radio installation near the airport without firing a shot after government guards threw down their weapons and fled, military sources said.

The infiltrators planted explosives in several radio rooms. The charges cut much of the capital's commercial communications with the world.

At daybreak, Thailand-based F4 phantom jets began attacks 1½ miles from the airport. Airliners continued to take off and land during the tactical strikes.

Passengers at the terminal could see black smoke billowing up from the attack area. The daylong bombing jarred Phnom Penh seven miles away.

In Washington, the Pentagon said that U.S. bombing is at its highest level in a month because of increased pressure by Communist-led forces.

A Pentagon spokesman gave no specific figures, but said the number of single B52 missions rose from 40 to about 50 per day and that the number of tactical fighter bomber missions was higher than the 200 a day average of recent weeks.

Scattered fighting was reported around Phnom Penh Wednesday. A battle to the northeast at Siem Reap, near the ancient ruins of Ankor Wat, killed six insurgents and wounded five government soldiers, the Cambodian command said.

The Ankor Wat ruins have been held by insurgent forces for three years.

In Phnom Penh, a convoy of about 150 trucks and trailers laden with food and other supplies arrived along Highway 4 from the seaport of Kompong Som.

At Neak Luong, newsmen were allowed to pay a 30-minute visit to the Mekong River garrison town hit Monday in a U.S. bombing error that left at least 137 persons dead and 268 wounded. The newsmen reported two-thirds of the town of 7,000 soldiers and their families was destroyed or damaged.

In Laos, Premier Souvanna Phouma said a military-political agreement for a coalition government with the Communists could be signed next week.

Souvanna Phouma said in an interview with a German television newsman that he thought it would take one or two years to integrate Communist and non-Communist elements in a coalition government.

The Communist-backed Pathet Lao and the Royal Lao government have agreed in principle to putting into effect the Laotian peace agreement signed last February, but the two sides are still negotiating details.

Negotiations Fail To Bring Arab Merger

Cairo (UPI) — Four days of negotiations in Tripoli by high-level Egyptian and Libyan delegations have failed to reach full agreement on plans to unite the two Arab countries, Egyptian political sources said Wednesday.

"Only a limited measure of agreement has been reached," the sources said.

They said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy will meet again in the third week of this month in an attempt to settle the outstanding important issues, including the question of the referendum scheduled for Sept. 1.

Campaign For Agnew Giving Him Problems

(c) Washington Star-News

Washington — It was only four months ago that the fund-raising letter was mailed to thousands of Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew's supporters, soliciting contributions to begin building a grass-roots organization to promote a 1976 presidential campaign.

But now the headquarters of "Americans for Agnew" in Los Angeles has been closed, the telephones have been disconnected, the disposition of the money is uncertain and the General Accounting Office is investigating the fund-raising campaign.

Those events are belived to be totally unrelated to the criminal investigation the vice president faces in his home state of Maryland, but the California organization has created its own problems for Agnew.

Among them:

— The vice president is in the position of publicly disavowing the 1973 activities of an organization which he covertly supported in 1972, to the extent of requesting actor John Wayne to serve as Americans for Agnew's honorary chairman.

— Both members of Agnew's staff and the California fund raisers say the letter seeking donations was not authorized by the vice president, but the literature fails to carry any such disclaimer, as required by federal law.

— Under other provisions of that same law, Americans for Agnew should have filed with the GAO no later than June 10 a public report listing the source of the money collected and its disposition. But almost two months past the deadline, that financial report still has not been submitted.

— Last year, when the organization's work was sanctioned by Agnew, $15,000 of the $25,000 it collected went exclusively to a pair of "political consultants" in the form of consulting fees, expense reimbursement and salary payments.

Relations Strianed

Relations between Agnew's office and the organization have become so strained that last month David A. Keene, the vice president's special assistant for national affairs, suggested the the California committee that "your latest appeal may amount to little more than an attempt to defraud supporters and admirers of the vice president."

The organizers of Americans for Agnew are John L. Daniel, owner of Allied Media Associates, a small Los Angeles public relations firm, and Greig Smith, who says he works for Daniel "on and off . . . we work at different things."

According to Smith, approximately 6,000 copies of an April 5 fund-raising letter were mailed to a selected list of known Agnew supporters, producing donations of about $6,000.

"It was going to be a very low-key effort," said Daniel. "The object was to keep the thing out of the newspapers."

The letter noted that Agnew had not made a "definite decision" about entering the 1976 presidential race, but said early contributions were needed to build "a strong, viable and responsible organization" which "will do much to convince the vice president that he should indeed make the race."

The office address on the letter proved to be vacant and the telephone number provided had been disconnected. "We haven't been in that building since before Christmas," said Daniel, explaining that the contributions were routed to his consulting firm.

Inquiry to Wayne

An inquiry submitted to John Wayne's office about the organization which had his name top its letterhead produced a statement from the actor's secretary that "the only thing we know about it is that Agnew's office called him from Washington and asked him to act as honorary chairman."

The secretary said the request came from Peter J. Malatesta, a special assistant to Agnew, but he initially denied it: "I wrote a letter to Wayne asking him to have nothing to do with these people. I asked him not to participate because this outfit had no sanction from us whatsoever."

Asked about that apparent contradiction, J. Marsh Thomson, Agnew's press secretary, explained that early last year, when there was some question about whether President Nixon would retain Agnew as his running mate on the 1972 ticket, Agnew did not discourage — and may have quietly encouraged — the organization's support.

Thomson said Malatesta did seek Wayne's assistance last year, when some of Agnew's wealthier supporters also were backing the committee. Among the $1,000 donors in that category were Arthur C. Neilson, chairman of the A. C. Neilson Co., a Chicago market research firm; Joseph Coors, a member of the Colorado brewing family; and Walter Harnischfeger, honorary chairman of the Milwaukee firm which bears his name and manufactures heavy construction equipment.

But since the 1972 election, "every effort has been made to repudiate them," said Thomson, including two letters, on May 14 and July 2, from Keene to Smith threatening "to take whatever steps may prove necessary to stop exploitation of the vice president's name."

Smith said, "We never received any such communication to my knowledge."

Counterdemonstration

A group of Fresno County Calif., farmers and their wives staged a counterdemonstration and waved American flags Wednesday in response to United Farm Workers Union picketing at fruit ranches struck for failure to renew farm labor contracts.

Violent Offenses Continue Climb

WASHINGTON (AP) — The total number of serious crimes dropped last year for the first time in 17 years but most violent offenses continued to climb, the FBI said Wednesday.

Serious crime declined in 94 major cities, contributing to an over-all 8 per cent decrease in cities of more than 250,000, the agency said in its final tabulation of crime data for 1972.

Nationwide, crime fell 2 per cent, the report said.

The report was issued less than a week after Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson joined with critics who have disputed the accuracy and completeness of the reports, based on data from local and state police officials.

"It is universally recognized that only a fraction of all crimes committed are reported to the police at all," Richardson said.

In the report, the FBI agreed that many crimes are not reported but said the data provides some clues about crime trends.

The new report showed a 2 per cent decline in the total of seven categories of serious crime—murder, aggravated assault, forcible rape, robbery, burglary, larceny $50 and over, and auto theft.

Though murder, assault and rape increased, the other four categories reflected declines. The largest decrease was a 6 per cent drop in auto thefts.

The report said attackers continue to favor guns, rather than knives or other weapons, as the implements of murder and robbery.

In 54 per cent of all murder cases, handguns were the weapons used. And 63 per cent of all armed robberies were committed with guns.

One-quarter of all murders are committed among family relatives and 7 per cent involved romantic triangles or lovers' quarrels, the report said.

But it added that there has been a 5 per cent increase since 1966 in the number of murders stemming from robberies, sexual attacks, and gangster activities.

Prosecutor Cox Beefs Up ITT Investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox has beefed up his investigation of the International Telephone & Telegraph Iorp. case which will be among the first orders of business for the new Watergate grand jury when it convenes on Monday.

A spokesman for the prosecutor's office confirmed Wednesday that Richard J. Davis, head of Cox's investigation of political espionage and dirty tricks in the 1972 campaign, has shifted temporarily to the probe of the administration's handling of the ITT antitrust settlement.

He also confirmed that the White House has not yet responded to Cox's request for an ITT file the prosecutor described as important evidence.

At a news conference July 27, Cox called the file of the utmost importance and said his request for it had been pending for some time without "a favorable answer or a negative."

Five days later, at the Senate Watergate committee hearings, chief counsel Samuel Dash released a March 30, 1972, White House memorandum about ITT which Dash said indicated former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell had committed an apparent act of perjury.

The memo, written by Charles W. Colson, then a White House special counsel to then presidential chief of staff H. R. Haldeman, said Mitchell knew about a $400,000 ITT pledge to help underwrite the 1972 Republican National Convention before three antitrust suits against the company were settled.

Mitchell testified under oath at Senate hearings on the nomination of Richard G. Kleindienst to be his successor as attorney general that he knew nothing of the $400,000 pledge before the suits were settled.

The Colson memo said Mitchell was told about the ITT pledge one month before the settlement on July 30, 1971.

Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson announced on June 8, shortly after Cox became special prosecutor, that he had given Cox the Justice Department files on the ITT and asked him to take over the investigation.

Among the matters under investigation had been whether any witnesses at the Kleindienst confirmation hearings had committed perjury.

Last month, at Cox's request, U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica signed an order creating a special grand jury to hear evidence on Watergatematters other than the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters and the subsequent cover-up attempt.

That panel meets for the first time Monday.

The Cox task force on ITT is headed by Joseph J. Connolly, a former Justice Department attorney who had been in private law practice in Philadelphia.

Davis had been in the U.S. attorney's office in New York, prior to joining Cox's staff. He had specialized in investigations of corruption.

The ITT settlement allowed the giant conglomerate to acquire Hartford Fire Insurance Co. But it was required to divest itself of four subsidiaries.

Three Justice Department suits seeking to nullify ITT corporate acquisition, including that of Hartford Fire, were pending against the conglomerate.

The settlement became an issue at the Kleindienst hearings after columnist Jack Anderson published a memorandum allegedly written by ITT lobbyist Dita Beard that linked the settlement to the reported $400,000 offer from ITT Sheraton.

Richardson Tries To Take Politics Out Of Department

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spurred by the Watergate scandal, Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson Wednesday announced new orders designed to take politics out of the Justice Department.

He put the White House, Congress and private interest groups on notice that written files will be kept of all contacts between them and Justice Department officials.

Richardson also said he has ordered all top department officials to stay out of political activities and also is considering establishing a new office to insure the fair application of the law.

Richardson outlined the orders in a speech prepared for the American Bar Association.

"Having taken office as attorney general in the midst of the darkening cloud of suspicion and distrust engendered by Watergate, I recognize it as my first duty to do what I can to eliminate the causes of distrust," he said.

He said he has issued an order "formalizing and making uniform a procedure for making records of contacts with departmental personnel by outside parties."

The system, he said, is designed to insure a "record of contacts with the department that can be called upon should the need arise to rebut some accusation of improper influence."

Moreover, he continued, "its very existence will discourage approaches to the department by those who are not confident of the purity of their motives."

The order requires all department employes to keep written records of all contacts with outsiders, except news media.

As for political activities, Richardson noted that previous attorneys general of both parties have been active in politics and he himself is a politician.

"There is still a place for politics as usual—but not in the Department of Justice," Richardson said.

Consequently, he said he has concluded he must act "not only to foreswear politics for myself but to ask my principal colleagues to do the same."

Transatlantic Balloon Flight Soars Off With Gust Of Wind

BAR HARBOR, Maine (AP) — Former jockey, singer and standup comic Bob Sparks caught a westerly wind Wednesday in an attempt to become the first transatlantic balloonist.

To the cheers of nearly 1,000 spectators, Sparks, 37, wafted off from Bar Harbor Airport in the Yankee Zephyr, a nine-story red, white and blue balloon.

After crew members adjusted the ballast and Sparks cut the anchoring ropes, the helium-filled aircraft glided across a field and soared up, up and away.

"I'll see you in Paris Monday," said one of the ground crewmen.

Sparks said he expects to reach Europe in five days. He said he's aiming for France, "but I'd consider anything from Finland to Italy a pinpoint landing."

The Tamiment, Pa., resort entertainment director kissed his daughters, Susan, 11, and Vicki, 9, before taking off shortly after daybreak.

Then, moments before the launch, he yelled to the girls through a bullhorn to be sure to get to bed early.

Ten minutes later, the balloon disappeared in the hazy sky. Within another hour, the airport had lost radio contact with the balloon.

Sparks and his 20-member ground crew had spent the past three weeks near this resort town, awaiting the go-ahead from a meteorologist in New York when wind and weather conditions were just right.

"There were those who tried to push us into going sooner, but if we don't make it, it won't be because we rushed into it," Sparks said.

Following the launch, the crew moved its headquarters to New York.

Sparks holds the hot air balloon soaring record — 11 hours and 14 minutes — and spent the last two years preparing for the 3,200-mile transatlantic flight.

Unsuccessful attempts to cross the Atlantic in a balloon took place in 1873, 1968 and 1970. The balloonists survived the first two efforts, but the 1970 trip ended in tragedy when the three-member crew disappeared without a trace.

Sparks' emergency equipment includes a parachute and scuba gear. His aluminum gondola, described as unsinkable, can be converted into a boat, complete with mast and sails.

The balloonist wore a blue jump suit and carried thermal underwear for subzero temperatures at high altitudes.

Sparks planned to go up about 1,000 to 1,500 feet Wednesday, then climb steadily — possibly as high as 17,000 feet.

For Sparks, the transatlantic trip is the fulfillment of a lifelong ambition.

"He's wanted to do this since he was 5 or 6," said his mother, Mrs. Norma Sparks, who witnessed the launching. "I've never stood in his way."

India's Leadership 'Unnerved'

©The New York Times

New Delhi — Scandals in several states and whispers of widespread corruption have unnerved Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government.

The recent scandals, involving senior officials in Punjab and West Bengal, have loosened a wave of criticism against the New Delhi government. "An overpowering stench of corruption pervades the corridors of power," said L. K. Advani, chairman of the Jana Sangh Party, India's second largest political group after the powerful congress Party.

Although allegations of corruption are hardly new in the nation, the two most recent scandals and several others have deeply embarrassed Mrs. Gandhi's government, now facing serious economic problems. One knowledgeable government official, admittedly disillussioned, told a visitor: "One always says corruption in endemic here. Nonsense. A qualitative change has taken place.

"What's happened in the past few weeks is the tip of the iceberg but is significant," he went on. "But what it means is that the moral authority of leadership is slowly eroding. It has a corrosive effect. People have their hand in the till, not only from the Congress Party but from the Jana Sangh, the CPI (Communist Party of India) and the others."

All the non-Communist opposition have already called for an "national protest day" Aug. 26 in an attack on government "maladministration" and "mismanagement."

The survey said the "single biggest source of routine corruption" among legislators and state officials was influencing appointments, promotions and jobs. Securing permits and licenses is the second largest source, according to the analysis.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

A conservative columnist has come up with his own answer to the campaign abuses that are characterized by the Watergate affair, International Telephone and Telegraph, etc. Forget about limits on campaign contributions and expenditures, he advises, and remove the temptations to economic abuse in politics.

And how do you remove the temptations that bring large sums of money into the coffers of men and women seeking public office? People giving to politics are looking for some kind of favor or special consideration.

If there are no favors or any special consideration that can be given to them, they will not put their money into politics. And if government were sufficiently reduced in size, there would be no special favors to buy and the big money would stop flowing in politics.

It may sound like a fairy tale but the fellow proposing it was serious. He views the answers of traditional conservatism as the answer to campaign abuses. It sounds to us like the most impractical solution to a problem that we have heard in a long time.

Eliminate the Civil Aeronautics Board and the airlines would have far less interest in government and be far less tempted to make campaign contributions. Maybe yes and maybe no.

Maybe then the airlines would try plumping for lower appropriations for highways and more for airports, etc. So, you do away with the highway trust funds. But maybe then the airlines shift their interest to anti-trust matters. Then you would have to do away with the anti-trust laws or perhaps the Justice Department.

And so it would go until there was simply no government at all, maybe a conservative's dream but a far cry from reality.

Builders, the columnist reasoned, might lose interest in contributing to campaigns if the government stopped building houses. Nonsense — builders have a variety of interests in the affairs of the nation, including the management of federal timber reserves.

They are interested, too, in governmental establishment of interest rates and government-guaranteed mortgages. To remove the interest of builders in government, you would have to dismantle a whole array of essential federal activities.

In the end, for such a plan to work would mean the end of the federal government as we know it today. Now, there are some who might welcome that but if people honestly contemplate such a thing, they would quickly see it as far more of a loss than a gain.

We may not like all that the federal government does but our way of life is closely tied to many of the prevailing federal activities.

★

And how even would the nation tend to its own international security? To have a military force, you have to have taxes and taxes alone are enough to stimulate the interest and concern of the nation's wealth.

If anything, the end results of dissolving the government as an answer to campaign abuses would be to turn the country over to wealthy interest groups without any effort at all on their part.

Conservatism certainly has its place in political affairs and it is undoubtedly right at times when it argues that government has become too large in some area or other but the size of government, in our opinion, has very little relationship to the integrity of that government. Smaller governments of the past still managed on occasion to have their scandals.

NY Police Trapped In Own Violations

NEW YORK — It's almost impossible to find anything funny about air pollution. But, once again, "Fun City" has crashed through.

In the past few years New York has been getting tough with chimneys that shoot pollutants among its skyscrapers and turn the air into unhealthy brown goo.

And, strangely enough, they've almost pulled it off. There are days now when a body can walk its streets without going into a choking spasm.

People are even discovering, much to their astonishment, that Manhattan isn't really a city of cry-babies, after all. With the improved air, eyes have stopped streaming.

And so, flushed with success, the City Fathers finally decided to crack down on the biggest offender of all: the 840,000 automobiles that clog the streets daily.

The first target was motorists who double and triple park (some even use the handiest sidewalk), individuals who park in front of fire hydrants and driveways, and those who pay no attention to overtime limits or "No Parking" zones.

Get those jokers off the streets, the City Fathers figured, and traffic would begin to move across town for the first time in years.

☆ ☆ ☆

Out went the order to the police: be tough. Ruthless, even. Don't be scared off by a medical or diplomatic plate. Clear the midtown streets at all costs — even if you have to haul away illegally parked vehicles.

It was an elite force: 20 of New York's "finest." They had instructions to issue 100 summonses each on "T (for ticket) Day," and another 2,000 the day after that. Then their superiors would decide whether the goal had been "realistic."

Well, you can imagine. Right off the bat the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association screamed about the "quota" system. And the total for "T-Day?" Only 300 tickets.

Several officers came back after giving out only 15 summonses. (Any tourist can spot more violations than that just walking about his hotel block.) After a little pep talk with their bosses, the cops moved faster for a couple of weeks. So did traffic.

Then the secret of their reluctant ticket-writing figures came out: along with doctors, diplomats, the press and delivery trucks, one of the worst parking offenders in town was the police themselves.

And you can picture their reaction — after a hard day chasing muggers — upon finding their personal automobile had been ticketed. Cops whose cars had been towed away were even more furious. Not only did they have to pay a parking fine; they were stuck with a $50 towing charge.

They went crying to higher-ups, who had, back in the good old days, voided all their parking tickets. No luck. The towing charge would be overlooked — this once — but from now on, orders are that police have to obey parking regulations just like anybody else.

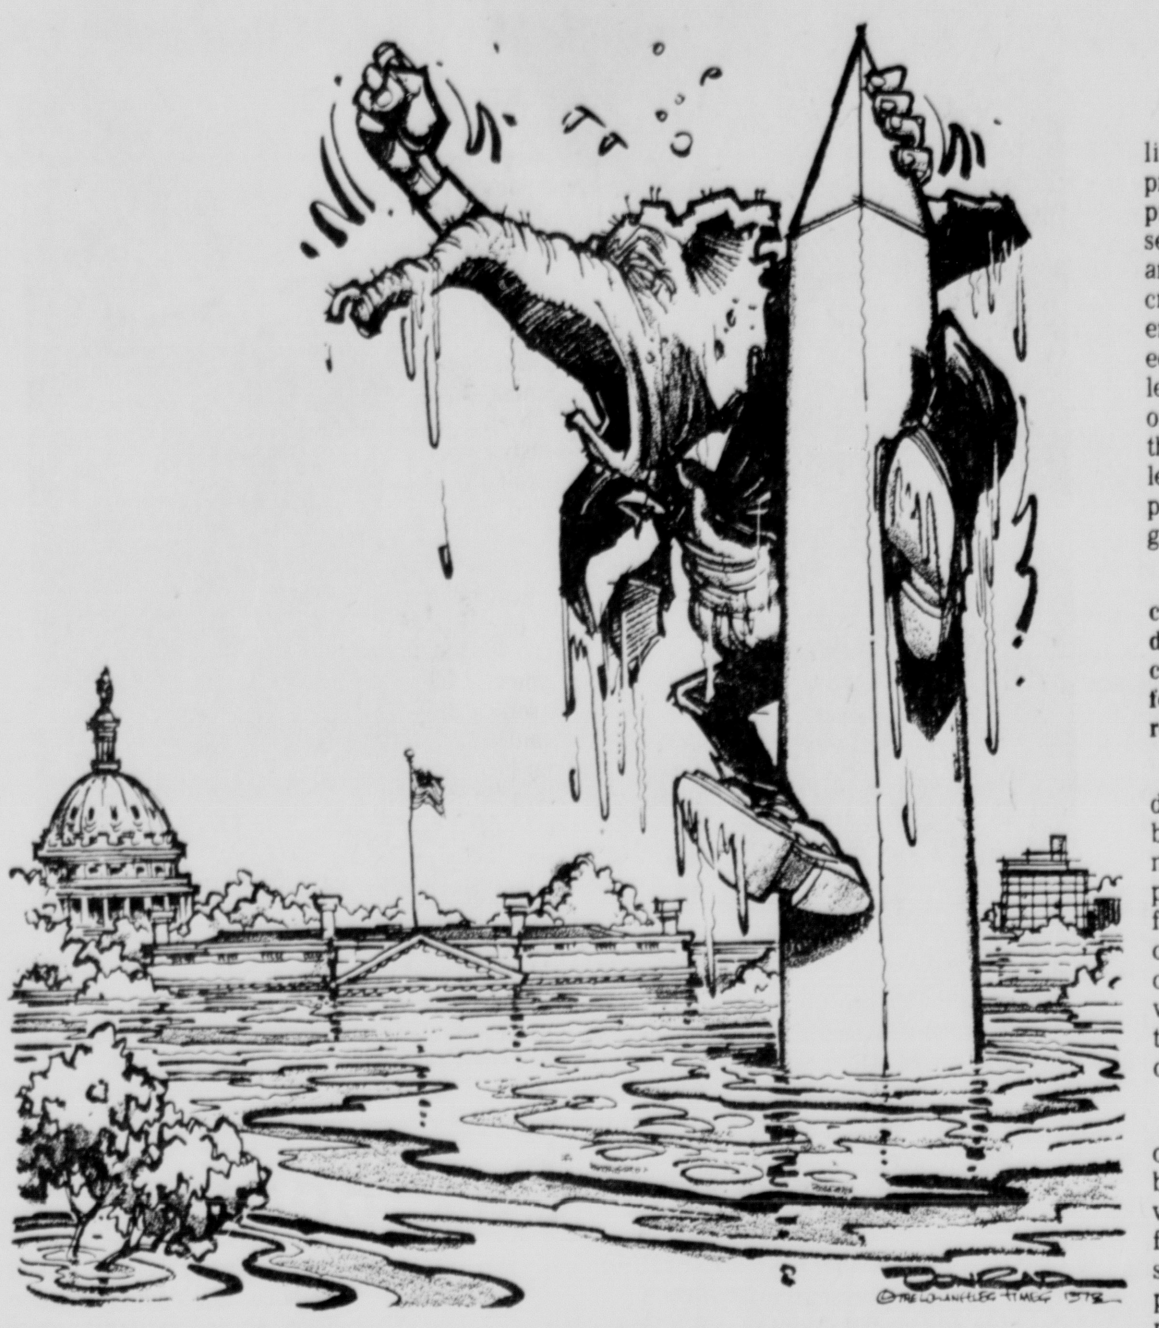
'What About Chappaquiddick?'



Sunday Beer Sales

The controversial issue of the sale of beer on Sunday by taverns under the jurisdiction of the Lancaster County board defies an easy, fair solution.

The county has commendably tried to cooperate with the City of Lincoln, which does not permit the sale of beer to the public on Sunday, by following a policy of not permitting Sunday beer sales by those outlets close to the city limits.

But the county board does permit four other active licensees within its jurisdiction to sell on Sunday. Thus the rather loose policy it has been following, while commendable from a cooperative standpoint, is in reality a highly effective form of economic discrimination. Those licensed premises close to the city who would like to get in on lucrative Sunday business are denied the chance.

The three-member board of commissioners is now seeking a uniform policy. At least two of the members feel that the present policy of allowing some taverns to sell beer on Sundays and denying that privilege to others should be discontinued in favor of a consistent rule applicable to all establishments within the board's jurisdiction.

One alternative, of course, would be to put a total stop to Sunday beer sales by any licensee operating at the board's pleasure. But that would spell economic disaster for those outlets now enjoying the privilege of Sunday sales. And by most standards it would not be a particularly fair action to take.

The board should consider one practical factor. We think it's a truism that most people in Lincoln and in the county who really want to drink beer on Sunday will drive to wherever it is sold. There are now the four active licensees under the board's jurisdiction enjoying Sunday beer business. But even if they were closed down on Sunday, there are other establishments within the county under the jurisdiction of incorporated villages which may reasonably be expected to continue operating on Sunday. Thus a policy of cooperating with the city of Lincoln to discourage Sunday beer drinking is in our mind rather naive.

It would be more realistic to swing the other way with the uniformity idea and allow additional applicants desiring to do so to take their chances in the Sunday beer market.

How Definitive?

President Nixon has apparently changed his tune in the great constitutional test of strength now underway in connection with the tapes of Watergate conversations and related presidential documents.

When the Ervin committee and Special Prosecutor Cox subpoenaed the tapes, the President said no, he wouldn't hand them over, and the court battle ensued. But he did say, back on July 26, that he would abide by a Supreme Court ruling that dealt fully and definitively with the constitutional question of the separation of powers.

Now the President's lawyers contend that the courts have no authority to force Nixon to turn over the tapes and that any attempt to enforce the subpoena "would be an unsupportable violation of the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers." Said the brief: "The President is answerable to the nation but not to the courts."

With that argument in mind, whether any ultimate ruling of the Supreme Court would be "definitive" enough to support a presidential decision to abide by the law is anybody's guess. If the court decides that the President lost the legal argument and he decides he didn't lose it, a far greater constitutional crisis will develop.

But all this need not be. "The Constitution wouldn't collapse and the heavens wouldn't fall in" if Nixon voluntarily turned over the material, Sen. Ervin has said, and they wouldn't. He should turn the material over — for the good of the country and himself.

JAMES RESTON

Nixon And Burke's Law

WASHINGTON — If President Nixon were merely faced by a legal tangle over letting the courts and the Congress see the relevant parts of his Watergate tapes, his argument before the United States District Court here might help him in his present predicament, but that is not really or even mainly his problem.

His problem is not primarily legal but moral, psychological and political. He is faced by a troubled and divided nation, seething with doubt and suspicion over the current scandals. The people are asking him to relieve their anxieties, to clear away their doubts by the records in his possession, to do what is right, and he has answered with a mystifying proclamation on his legal rights.

During the great struggle with the British before the founding of the Republic, King George III and Lord North had many legal rights on their side, but Edmund Burke, arguing in his famous second speech on conciliation with America said: "It is not what a lawyer tells me I MAY do, but what humanity, reason, and justice tell me I ought to do."

This has been the missing principle in the President's defense of his administration all along. He has taken refuge in narrow legalities, giving ground to truth only when compelled to do so and not always then, and the result is that each grudging statement, including his legal brief on the tapes, merely perpetuates the mistrust that is crippling his government.

☆ ☆ ☆

"The issue here is starkly simple," the President's lawyers argued. "Will the presidency be allowed to continue to function?" This is precisely right, but it is not functioning now as it should. And is not likely to function until some kind of confidence is restored in the good faith and effective cooperation of the three branches of the government.

Even those parts of the tapes dealing with charges of criminal action cannot be released, the President argued, because of "the paramount need for frank expression and discussion among the President and those consulted by him in the making of presidential decisions."

This is a better point, but after listening to the testimony of Messrs. Kleindienst, Gray, Walters, Magruder, Dean, and even Ehrlichman and Haldeman, one wonders how much "frank expression and discussion" there was at the top of this administration over the last couple of years.

It is conceded in the President's brief that Nixon could voluntarily make available relevant parts of the tapes, but this he refused to do, thus confronting the Congress and even his own prosecutor with the problem that he won't give the tapes voluntarily and that they can't compel him to give them up.

Unfortunately, this only makes the outlook even darker than it was before. For his argument seems to be that to submit to decisions of the court would make the presidency subservient to the judiciary, and this implies that even if the Supreme Court ordered him to hand over portions of the tapes, he would defy that order.

☆ ☆ ☆

The reference to impeachment in the President's brief is even more ominous. "The President of the United States . . ." the brief states, "is not above the law. He is liable to prosecution, and punishment in the ordinary course of law for crimes he has committed but only after he has been impeached, convicted, and removed from office." Meanwhile, the brief argues, the President, and the President alone, must be the sole judge of what private papers he discloses, even if he knows they contain evidence of criminal action.

This is interesting, for there is one body of opinion here that only by absolute candor or, paradoxically, by absolute defiance can the President break the present dilemma. Candor he seems to have ruled out, but he could argue that he has denied all guilt, that the hearings and the charges go on, that they are poisoning his character and interfering with the conduct of his administration, and therefore, that he demands a bill of impeachment to vote the issue up or down.

On the basis of all the evidence here, the Congress has no heart for such a struggle. It is doubtful that such a bill of impeachment would ever be passed by a majority of all members and sent on to the Senate for judgment. But it would divide the country even more than it is.

Accordingly, the hope here is that he will not take the route of defiance, but will, again in Burke's words, recognize that "all government, indeed every human benefit and enjoyment, every virtue and every prudent act, is founded on compromise."

There is, however, no sign of compromise in his legal argument. He is reversing Burke's principle. He is following what "a lawyer tells me I may do" rather than "what humanity, reason, and justice tell me I ought to do."

LA VERNA HASSLER

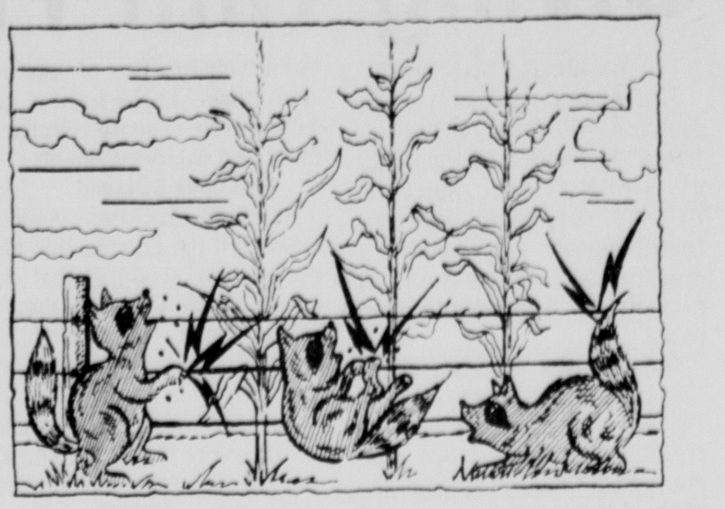
Patchwork Prairie Country

I wonder what the world was like when people had just problems . . . plain ordinary problems. Today our world seems to be one crisis after another. I hear of the energy crisis that lurks as a threat to our entire way of life. There is the ecology crisis that some say leaves us tottering on the brink of our own extinction. Then there is the money crisis that leaves the value of our dollar in poor stead compared to other global values.

We are faced with so many crises that it is small wonder we do not all return to the hills and crawl into caves. There we could forget all the threats, doomsday reports and begin all over again.

Perhaps we could forget the dollar and collect sea shells and beads. We could hike down the mountain trail on a well-worn pathway and eliminate gas fumes and air pollution. We could pull the weeds about our cave dwelling instead of spraying with deadly weed sprays, thereby eliminating an ecology crisis.

Littering with plastic and other civilized debris would become a thing of the past since we would go back to nature's food such as a TV commercial suggests. We could eat cattails, pine trees, water sprouts and numerous other plants. What we didn't eat, we could toss down the canyon to be returned to the soil. And we would be happy! Or would we? I suspect we would still be competing with the Joneses in the next cave. . . who had the largest cave dwelling, whose children were the best hunters or who had the largest store of sea shells for trading. In so doing we would not have a crisis each time, just problems.



It would seem a crisis develops when a problem becomes gigantic. Now, if man could develop a scheme whereby he could keep above his problems . . . not collect too many sea shells, nor look for too large a cave . . . he may become quite content. Did Watergate turn from a problem into a crisis because too many sea shells were collected?

Well, unfortunately there is not so simple an answer to our crisis-ridden life.

Disking the plowed ground has been the work of farmers in this area. Those who had the ground plowed before the rain find the green wheat growing in the fields. Some find the plowing to be quite a task since the rain. The heavy straw left after combining does not allow the ground to dry beneath it or else it absorbs moisture and does not plow well.

☆ ☆ ☆

The electric fence is working to our advantage around the sweet corn. Not a coon has invade the patch. In a day or two, we will have sweet corn on the table.

How fast the ears do grow especially after a rain and cool weather. Tomatoes likewise took a new spurt of growth and the peppers have set blossoms all over the plants.

I suppose the most obvious growth boost shows up in the weeds. How they do spurt up and out after a rain. It almost seems they overtake the garden overnight, sticking up here and there in the cucumbers and squash. Bare spots in the lawn are soon filled with a small patch of weeds shooting skyward at a rapid rate.

I am convinced Nebraska can be as beautiful as any other state when it is favored with rain. The entire countryside is such a lush green color now with the fields of corn wearing tassels and the milo heading. Soybeans look so nice and the hay fields have produced several cuttings.

It is good to remember the lushness of the countryside at such a time as this. Then when the rains do not come and the wild hot summer winds blow, we can say . . . Nebraska can be green and beautiful. It has been and it may be again. It is a way of keeping faith that every farmer knows so well.

The Trains

Lincoln, Neb.

As a kid, trains played a great part in my life. Our first family trip was from Nebraska to Tennessee where Mama's mother and brothers lived. They lived in an old-fashioned southern house. The kitchen had a big iron cooking stove. All the other rooms had fireplaces, lovely except that in winter, one warmed only one side at a time, back or front.

At four o'clock, the daily train came in to drop off and pick up the mail. Old men joshed with the engineers and heard news from the big cities. Children stood in awe of the huffing, puffing engine, belching out its black smoke. Passengers inside tapped on windows and smiled and waved. Then came the chug-chug of the train's starting, leaving town and the low wail of the distant whistle.

We next moved to the state of Washington and lived on a hill overlooking the track. Every kid along the way jumped up and down, waving both arms at the passing iron monster. The engineer with red kerchief around his neck waved back, and the passengers, too.

I loved riding on these mighty iron monsters. Farm families far below in a valley came out to wave as the train flew by. Going through the Rocky Mountains, one saw dazzling sights. The raging Colorado River was far below the track. The conductor called out spots of interest. Up there beneath spreading trees on a lonely rocky ledge is the grave of Helen Hunt Jackson, the author deeply interested in Indian affairs. I thought, what a lovely place to lie.

In one small town where we lived, the tracks were half a block away. We laid crossed pins and small nails on the track. After the train passed, we had perfect tiny scissors.

After the Chautauqua folded its tent, ready to move on, the town's youngsters lined up along the track to wave farewell to the beautiful people who had brought us laughter and sparkle for the week.

The Journalists

Hebron, Neb.

The press and the so-called news media that include the three major TV networks immediately jump behind the free speech constitutional amendment and are molding public opinion with freak pictures of the President and his staff, etc., while a slick, well-groomed committee conduct the hearings.

Many countries have a Siberia for so-called journalists who deal in character assassination.

Free speech has been abused and trampled into the dust by the very ones who were screaming about the First Amendment. Yet the editorialists will go free to continue their character assassinations.

Street Repairs

Lincoln, Neb.

People have been doing so much grumbling about streets being torn up. And yet they would be grumbling a great deal louder if they were not furnished with what the tearing up accomplishes — smoothly paved streets, good electrical service, etc.

All most people think of is their own temporary inconvenience, both in driving and walking. They should think of the long-range benefits. I think we are fortunate to have crews and the budget to take care of these necessary repairs and changes.

Also, I think a little praise should be given to the city bus drivers who have been doing such a good job of improvising temporary routes and detours when they see that streets are blocked off. They are not always advised by their central office, but must figure out for themselves the best thing to do, and this they do good-naturedly

Broken Promises

Blair, Neb.

Pardon my suspicious nature, but I wasn't too impressed by the Nixon-Brezhnev clowning around and my feeling has nothing to do with the fact that I'm not a champagne fan. When Big Red smiles, engages in fun and games and talks about "happy days are here again," I remember the cat that swallowed the canary

The 1972 Nixon-Brezhnev caper left us as usual in our great diplomatic feats "sucking on the hind teat" — 50-50, as Brezhnev would call it. They got a cow and we got a calf.

Then I remember some 50 broken promises by the Russians over recent years, with two or three commitments kept. This, plus a Nixon with his back to the wall, ready to wheel and deal out.

No More Trust

Lincoln, Neb.

In regard to newspaper items telling about people's getting swindled out of $8,000 and $3,000 by phonies posing as telephone men and electricians and then altering the checks — how can this be done? This must be done by someone who would know someone's bank account, as most people wouldn't have that much money in a checking account, especially picking people at random.

Maybe the information comes through a teller at the bank (like Watergate). No one trusts anyone, any more.

Perhaps the idea was picked up from "The Rookies" or "Mission Impossible."

Survey: Majority Favor Cambodia Fund Cutoff

By LOUIS HARRIS

Louis Harris

By 64 to 22%, a sizable majority of the American people favor action by Congress cutting off all money for U.S. military operations in Cambodia by August 15. However, when asked how they would react if President Nixon requested a 30-day extension of an end to U.S. operations in Cambodia, by a narrow 45-43 percent, a plurality of the public favored giving the chief executive more time to negotiate a settlement.

These results are significant because they illustrate that public belief in Mr. Nixon's ability to handle foreign policy has remained relatively high, despite the erosion of confidence in him personally as a result of the Watergate investigation.

This fact is confirmed in other Harris survey results, indicating a 65-26% positive rating for the President on "handling relations with Russia," 60-29% positive standing in "handling relations with China," and an even higher 68-30 percent rating on "working for peace."

The public's strong desire to end all U.S. involvement in Indochina, following agreement to end the war in Vietnam, was evident in the question dealing with Congress's vote to cut off funds for Cambodian operations. Between July 18 and 22, a national cross-section of 1,485 households was asked:

"Did you favor or oppose action by Congress cutting off all money for U.S. military operations in Cambodia by August 15th, 1973?"

CONGRESS ACTION CUTTING OFF ALL CAMBODIAN WAR FUNDS

	Total Public
Favor	64%
Oppose	22%
Not sure	14%

More Time Allowed

Although he made it clear that he did not like the action of Congress on Cambodian Mr. Nixon nonetheless went along with the unprecedented move by not vetoing it. Cambodia still remains the one part of Indochina in which no immediate signs of a settlement appear in sight. U.S. planes have regularly conducted heavy bombing raids in response to continued communist attacks in the Phnom Penh capital area.

Many of the reasons cited by people for favoring such a cut-off of funds reflect the sad memory of the American people of the U.S. experience in Vietnam. As a college student in Urbana, Illinois put it, "I thought the war was over. We should stop that useless fighting by Americans right away. Haven't we learned it was the wrong war in the wrong place?"

Nonetheless, public aversion to continued U.S. bombings in Cambodia is not so great that a slim plurality would not refuse to give the President 30 more days to try to negotiate a Cambodian settlement. The cross-section was asked:

"President Nixon went along with Congress on cutting off money for U.S. military operations in Cambodia by August 15. Suppose the President asked Congress to extend that deadline for another 30 days to have time to negotiate a settlement in Cambodia, would you favor or oppose extending that deadline?"

GIVING PRESIDENT 30 MORE DAYS TO NEGOTIATE CAMBODIAN SETTLEMENT

	Favor	Oppose	Not Sure
Nationwide	45%	43%	12%
By Age
Under 30	42%	48%	10%
30-49	44%	45%	11%
50 and over	46%	39%	15%
By Education
8th grade or less	42%	34%	24%
High School	46%	41%	13%
College	42%	51%	7%
By Politics
Republican	53%	39%	8%
Democrat	40%	45%	15%
Independent	44%	47%	9%

Although the divisions are relatively close among all groups, the patterns of attitudes on extension of the cut-off of funds for Cambodia parallel the old schisms that plagued the country throughout the Vietnam war.

Opposition to any extension can be found among the young, the best educated, among Democrats and Independents. Support for an extension ran strongest among older people, the least well educated, and Republicans.

When asked what lay back of their views on such an extension of the Cambodian cut-off of U.S. funds, the central reasons given for favoring such a presidential request, by 28% of the public, was in essence, "The President knows best if he needs extra time to settle the war."

As a white collar clerk in Rockford, Illinois said, "Nixon knew what to do to get the Vietnam war ended, and I'm sure he understands best how to end the Cambodian part of the war. Even though I'm worried about Watergate, I still trust him on ending that war once and for all."

Opposition to granting such an extension to Mr. Nixon centers on the reason given by 33% of the public, "We've been there long enough, that war was a mistake, and let's get out now for good." A systems engineer in San Jose, California put it this way, "That damn war has gone on long enough. We did what we could, and it was a disaster. Get out and be done with it. More bombings are immoral and will do no good."

President Nixon rose to heights of public confidence after the final settlement in Vietnam and the return of the prisoners of war. His standing has since come down precipitously with the Watergate investigations. The public would like to think of Mr. Nixon as a leader seeking peace in the world.

The erosion of confidence in his foreign policy capabilities has not been appreciable. But this cannot be expected to be sustained unless a prompt and full resolution of public doubts about his involvement in Watergate is forthcoming.

It is significant that, by 54-38%, a majority agrees with the statement that "The President was right in saying it is more important for him to spend his time working for peace," although this majority is down from a comparable 63-24% majority who felt that way in May.

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

I walked into the oldest saloon in Skagway and called for drinks for the house. (Fortunately, there was no one there but me and the lady bartender.)

She said: "The city manager will be here in a minute. He can tell you all about the shooting of 'Soapy' Smith".

The white cruise ship "Spirit of London" docked here on a chill, gray morning. Skagway today has only 700 people, and most passengers take the train ride over the white pass that runs through the mountains that tower behind the town.

From Skagway in '98' thousands of miners backpacked over the pass, headed for gold — (thick as butter they said) — in the frozen Klondike.

In town, living like a frontier lord, "Soapy" and his gang fleeced them on the way in and robbed them on the way out.

☆ ☆ ☆

The city manager came in and said he was "Reverend" Bowers. (The original "Reverend" Charlie Bowers was one of 'Soapy's' bunco men.)

He had a moustache and chin whiskers and wore a flat, gray hat. He said: "Frank Reid — he was a vigilante — is supposed to have killed 'Soapy', but the bullet that killed him hit him in the back. There were other vigilantes there at the time so nobody really knows.

"You see 'Soapy' had gone down to the docks to have it out with Reid. He swung his Winchester on Reid and Reid grabbed it and pulled out his own gun as he did so.

"They both shot about the same time. Reid was hit in the groin.

"'Soapy' was shot twice — once through the leg and the other through the heart."

He said: "Now there's a theory that 'Soapy' was shot first in the leg. And when he bent over to grab it, Reid's next bullet went into his back.

"Anyway, they give credit to Reid — Reid thought he did it. And you can see the inscription with 'Hero' on it in the cemetery."

We drove out to the cemetery. "It seems a long way out now, but remember Skagway then had 15,000 people. Plus the miners going in and out or waiting for ships."

☆ ☆ ☆

Reid's grave has an imposing granite monument — it was the biggest funeral ever seen in Skagway, the whole town turned out.

"Soapy's grave has a wooden headboard — "Jefferson R. Smith, age 38. Died July 8, 1898."

The city manager said: "There've been two stones on the grave. But tourists chipped them away for souvenirs."

It's a small cemetery among the pine trees beside a tumbling, white water river. There are a number of headboards with the date 1898 (it must have been an unhealthy year.)

☆ ☆ ☆

We drove back to town and I bought a little pamphlet — "The 'Soapy' Smith Tragedy."

It says Smith's gang was rounded up and departed — "Some of them have traveled the broad road downward, while others under better influences are living honest, useful lives."

I asked the city manager if he'd like a drink. He said: "I'll just go across the street and have a hamburger. We put on a Shooting of 'Soapy' Smith play for the tourists on boat days. I play a part in it. So does my wife. Fact, most of the town plays in it."

☆ ☆ ☆

At the oldest bar in Skagway, the lady bartender was reading "Screen Gems." She was still alone.

A man in miner's clothes came in and said: "I located that lumber for you." I said: "For sluice boxes? For rich diggings?"

The lady bartender said: "No, I'm putting bunk beds in my children's bedroom."

'Heroic' Sailors Honored

MOSCOW (AP) — North Vietnam presented awards to Soviet sailors who displayed "heroism and courage" during the American blockade of North Vietnamese harbors, Tass reported.

The Soviet news agency said "Orders of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam" were given to crewmen from 13 Soviet vessels in ceremonies at the North Vietnamese Embassy.

North Vietnamese Ambassador Vo Huk Dong said Soviet seamen carried cargoes and assisted dock workers at Haiphong and other ports during the blockade, according to the Tass report.

Anatoly Kolesnichenko of the Soviet Shipping Ministry said the Soviet Union is continuing its aid to North Vietnam and that more than a dozen ships are unloaded every day in North Vietnamese harbors.

Court Stays IBM Contempt Fine Payment

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals reserved decision Wednesday on IBM's appeal from a contempt citation. But the court said that while it makes up its mind the huge computer firm won't have to pay a $150,000-a-day fine.

The fine was imposed last week by District Court Judge David N. Edelstein, who found IBM in contempt for refusal to turn over some 700 documents to the government in an antitrust suit.

The fine was stayed pending appeal.

IBM contends the documents demanded by the government fall within the area of lawyer-client relationship and thus are confidential.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Plans Make Early Retirement Enjoyable

By ROBERT PETERSON

QUESTION: — "Last fall someone gave my husband a rosewood plaque that quotes Chinese philosopher Confucius as saying, 'It's Later Than You Think.' He's got it hanging over the mantel and has become so obsessed with the philosophy that he's decided to sell his insurance business and retire at 53 next year, go on a world tour, and then satisfy a long-standing desire to enroll in college and work toward a degree in architecture. We can afford this if we cut a few corners, but aren't you always saying early retirement is bad?"

ANSWER: — It's bad if you love what you're doing and if you haven't something more interesting awaiting you in retirement. As your husband seems to have definite and specific plans for spending his time, he stands a good chance of enjoying early retirement. More people need to become aware of that oriental maxim which reminds us that life is indeed short. Too many people stay glued to the grindstone until too late and then don't have sufficient time or vitality to sample the myriad sights, travels and new experiences which beckon.

* * *

QUESTION: — "I was shocked the other night on television seeing the terrible living conditions in Peru where 90 per cent of the land is owned by 2 per cent of the people. I'm a widow of 55 with time and some extra money. What can I do to correct such situations?"

ANSWER: — Not much. The appalling poverty throughout much of South America seems to be so deeply entrenched through tradition and circumstances that individual Americans can do very little. The United States government, through its Alliance for Progress program, has tried to win reforms to help improve the standard of living in South America. But a prevailing apathy there seems to militate against change.

* * *

QUESTION: — "Before hitting 65 my wife treated me like a king. But since my retirement she's changed her attitude. I still pay the rent and buy the groceries but I'm at home all day and the way she orders me around you'd think I was the handyman."

ANSWER: — Many women are accustomed to having the house to themselves during the day and don't take kindly to retired husbands who follow them around the house and disturb fixed patterns of daytime living. Why not set up an office somewhere as a retirement retreat? If you're determined to stay retired, such an office provides a place where you can puff your pipe far from the critical gaze of your spouse. Togetherness can be carried too far, and many retired couples find that apartness several hours of the day contributes best to marital harmony.

* * *

QUESTION: — "My husband retired from engineering research at 60 last year and took me to the new Disneyworld in Florida. He must be retarded because he likes the place so much he has gone back for eight visits. He's down there this week — says it buoys his spirits and he's fascinated by the ingenuity of the exhibits. Isn't it odd for a grown man to spend this much time at an amusement park?"

ANSWER: — Disney parks may be youth oriented, but they represent an extremely sophisticated and complicated master plan. Those with an engineering turn of mind are always fascinated by the mechancial achievements of the Disney experts in creating attractions of wide appeal. Be thankful for your husband's wholesome interests. There are a lot more devilish delights he could be sampling.

NU Museum Director Schultz Donates Library To University

Over 45 years of collecting and writing have gone into the library that Dr. C. Bertrand Schultz, who has been director of the University of Nebraska State Museum for 35 years, and his wife Marian, are donating to the University Foundation.

The library consists of more than 10,000 catalogued articles and is being given to the University for the benefit of the Division of Paleontology.

Currently the museum's curator of vertebrate paleontology and professor of geology, Dr. Schultz began his career as a University Museum laboratory assistant in 1927. In 1938 he became a teacher of geology and paleontology at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and was also named acting director of the State Museum. In 1941 he was named director of the museum.

The Schultz library, which is being donated over a period of three years, consists of scientific publications mainly concerning the Oligocene, Miocene, Pliocene, and Pleistocene periods of geologic time. The specific area of interest in the publications are the mammals of these ages.

The library will be used mainly by graduate students, scientists, and faculty members, hopefully to save a great deal of time in research endeavors. Says Dr. Schultz: "We always want to work toward excellence, and we feel one way is to have a stronger, scientific library for the University."

Marian Schultz has been collaborating with her husband in writing scholarly publications. Most of these appear in the library and others will probably be added, as the Schultzes have 20 unfinished manuscripts. Dr. Schultz has written, by himself or with a colleague, well over 100 technical articles on geology, paleontology, and early man, all of which appear in the library.

Dr. Schultz, who is a native of Red Cloud, and his wife, a native of Omaha, are donating the collection because, in the words of Dr. Schultz: "We're Nebraskans, and oriented toward the University of Nebraska. We feel the University deserves to have an outstanding collection, because Nebraska has been good to us."

Goblin Revitalized By 'Last Straw'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — You might call it "the last straw" for 47-inch-tall actor Felix Silla, who figured out how to smoke his filter-tip cigarettes although submerged in makeup, webbed hands, elongated fingernails, a skin-tight headpiece which is mouthless, and a snoutlike nose.

Silla, who plays a goblin in a television movie, says one major problem occurs when he starts to itch in a hard-to-reach place, because the fingernails fall off easily.

As for his tobacco habit: Silla found that by taping a long soda straw to the end of his smoke, he could draw the other end to his lips through the opening for the nose on his headpiece.

Carroll Urged To Act On Pre-Trial Release Plan

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

The Region II Crime Commission Wednesday decided to tell Lincoln Police Chief Joe Carroll it wishes he would get around to studying a pre-trial release program that has been delayed at his request.

"I wouldn't interpret (the move) as putting pressure on the chief," the Rev. Otis Young, a member of the commission said. "We're just saying that this is hanging fire and we're concerned."

Leighton Wessel, the police department's coordinator of police-community relations, however, said he thought it would put pressure on the chief.

But Wessel's attempt to derail the move to write the chief by tabling the motion failed on an eight to six vote. The motion to write the chief subsequently carried on a unanimous voice vote.

"Why are you writing to him (the chief)?" asked Leighton.

"He's holding it up." Lincoln Municipal Court Judge Donald Grant replied.

The application for federal funds for the Lincoln Bar Association-sponsored pre-trial release program was abruptly stalled at the State Crime Commission in June when Carroll declared at virtually the last minute that he did not know how the program would operate.

The application had already won the approval of the State Crime Commission's grant review committee. The decisions of the grant review committee are only rarely overturned by the full commission.

In the two months that have passed since that time, one meeting has been held between Judge Grant, Inspector Dale Adams, Assistant Police Chief Willis Manchester, and the proposed director of the project, Prof. Alan Frank of the University of Nebraska — Lincoln College of Law.

Police Chief Joe Carroll, however, was out-of-town when that meeting was held.

"I certainly hope another meeting can be held soon," Judge Grant told the commission. "The full mechanism of the program is all ready to go. The law students are all lined up.

The program would use law students to investigate the backgrounds of suspects in jail, and in some cases, would recommend that the judge release them without bond.

Proponents of the program argue that it would allow persons to be released from jail even if they cannot afford, or do not know, a lawyer, and that the program would prevent possible misuse of present police authority to hold and release suspects on their own discretion before trial.

Bill Cooley, assistant to Lincoln Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf, told the commission that he felt that Carroll does not oppose the program, but just wants to be informed on how it will work.

However, when Carroll intervened to stall progress of the applications for $9,000 in federal funds, he said he "wouldn't mind" if the proposed Lincoln program would operate like the one in Omaha, a program he apparently believes is defunct.

As The Star reported shortly after Carroll's statement, Larry Myers, an Omaha attorney who was instrumental in establishing the Omaha program says the program there is still functioning, and in fact, is getting stronger all the time.

Carroll, however, as recently as last week during budget hearings before the Lincoln City Council said that the Omaha pre-trial release program had gone out of existance.

Ficke, Johnson Farms Tabbed For State Test

Judges selected two farms in the Lower Platte South Natural Resource District for statewide competition for conservation picture awards.

The farms were the Kenneth Ficke farm near Pleasant Dale and the Lawrence Johnson farm near Weeping Water.

The 160 acre Ficke farm has 7 miles of terraces and 5 acres of grassed waterways and a dam for livestock water. The farmstead has a well established windbreak and a pollution control system for the livestock operation.

Ficke also operates an additional 560 acres which is terraced or in good pasture. All of the cropland is farmed on the contour and waterways are carefully maintained.

The Lawrence Johnson farm is only 80 acres but has some 4.2 miles of terrace and 7 acres of grassed waterways. The farmstead has a storybook picture farm windbreak and the entire conservation system is beautifully maintained.

The three judges each selected the two farms independently of each other on the very first ballot according to district officials.

Correctional Facility Study Request Poked

Law Enforcement Assistance Administration handling of a request for a study of correctional facility and program needs for Lancaster County received more criticism Wednesday at a Region II Crime Commission meeting.

"I've seen a lot of snafu operations, but this takes the cake," Lancaster County Commissioner Robert Colin, a commission member said.

Colin has been questioning the status of the request for the study, particularly since a representative of a St. Louis architectural firm showed up unexpectedly last month with the intent of finding out what sort of a jail study is requested.

Region II Crime Commission members had been told by a State Crime Commission staff member that their request would lead to University of Illinois team coming to Lincoln to conduct the study.

Robert Harrison, corrections specialist with the State Crime Commission, later attempted to clarify the status of the study. He said that it had been learned that the University of Illinois team deals mainly with correctional program studies, rather than facility studies.

For that reason, Harrison said, the St. Louis architectural firm had been sent, since the State Crime Commission felt that the jail facility should be studied before the programs.

That decision, however, was questioned by Judge Grant at the commission meeting.

"It seems to me that is putting the cart before the horse," Grant said. "How would we know what the facility should be until we know what the programs would be?"

Commission chairman Roger Larson said that although the Region II Crime Commission was more interested in a study of correctional programs, "I guess we have to take it in the order it's given to us."

In other action at the Region II Crime Commission elected three new members to fill slots that have been empty for some time.

The new members are Margaret Burden, a 17-year-old senior at Southeast High School who will be the youngest member of the commission, John Alden, a vice-president of Bankers Life of Nebraska and Gerald Severson, a retired Roca resident who is past president of the Lancaster County Sheriff's posse.

Ray Gottner was elected vice chairman of the commission, replacing Roger Larson who was elected chairman after the death of Thomas Pansing.

In other action the commission approved and forwarded to the state level a request for $4,520 in federal funds to train two additional police officers to use lie detectors.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Travel, education are featured. You live and learn. You can also be publishing, advertising and writing. Ability to express and communicate is magnified. You want an audience. People are ready to respond.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Money situation needs review, thorough checking. Take inventory. Be aware of fine points. Also, be knowledgeable about details. Delegating duties would be a mistake. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio persons are likely to be in picture.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Pace slows. You need more information. Play waiting game. One who is close to you makes demands. Be receptive. Let others take initiative, express their views. You may not be free to act. Maintain low profile.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Much that occurs is apt to be undercover. It is necessary to be discreet. Don't reveal all you know. One connected with organization might create problem. Be diplomatic. Soft sell is your best approach.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Avoid acting on impulse. You have tendency now to see situations, persons as you wish they could be. Instead, face facts as they exist. Pisces individual could be in picture. Young person confides problem. Don't cast first stone.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The practical dominates. You won't find shortcuts that are viable. Need now is for specifics, for thoroughness, for knowing from the ground up — not for skipping, scrimping or overlooking details. Capricorn, Cancer persons are involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Take it easy when it comes to travel, dealings with relatives and letter writing. Control temper. Count to 10 before taking direct action. Finish what you start. Patience now is your chief ally. Know it and act like you are aware of it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Money of others may be in your hands. Key is to be original, daring without being careless. Special relationship could hinge on your actions and attitude. Be yourself. Don't put on airs. Leo and Aquarius might be in picture.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lunar cycle is such that you successfully meet challenge, overcome obstacle. Nothing comes easy now but your judgment, intuition are on the mark. Be confident. Study Sagittarius message. Make meanings crystal clear.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What you may want to keep secret could be exposed. Your ally is sense of fitness — and humor. Let light into areas where previously there may only have been heat. Delay, confinement is only temporary.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Share views — and knowledge. Realize you must accept responsibility along with position. Message will become increasingly clear. A change will occur. But some circumstances may be out of your personal control.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are attracted to medicine, law. You have knack of appealing to large numbers of people. Your views are often considered controversial. Your disposition generally is "sunny" but your temper can flare when you feel "put upon." You attract numerous persons born under Aries and Libra. In September, you get new deal and will be more independent.

Womanizer Nets A Divorce Suit

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Solomon Fegion is a womanizer who won't give his wife enough money for groceries, says Johnnie Lee Fegion in her divorce suit.

"I wanted to stay with him, but he wouldn't stop chasing after women," Mrs. Fegion says.

They are living in separate houses a few paces apart, and Fegion is under court order to pay his wife $6 weekly for food until the divorce becomes final in four months.

Like her husband, Mrs. Fegion had a previous marriage that ended in divorce.

She's 100 years old, according to county records; her husband, 103.

Beef Conditions Will Worsen

. . . Until Freeze Lifted, Officials Predict

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Omaha — The National Livestock and Meat board executives are unhappy about the beef price ceiling and predict that conditions will continue to get worse until the freeze is lifted.

John A. Copeland, chairman, told newsmen at the board's 51st annual meeting here that the freeze had "sharply curtailed livestock marketing, but the long range marketing pattern for beef in particular had been disrupted."

Citing closing of several plants and curtailed production at other packing plants, Copeland said, "The longer these patterns are permitted to exist, the more serious they become for the present and the future."

'Immediate Lifting'

Copeland called for the immediate lifting of the price freeze on beef and asked that similar disruptive government actions be banned in the future so the meat industry can return to planning on a long-range basis.

"If the industry cannot be assured that this type of action will not recur the penalty will be felt on the livestock and meat industries and by the consumer," he predicted.

The three-day meeting has attracted a number of officials of meat-producing and meat-using industries to Omaha.

Representatives of food chains, restaurants, livestock producers, farm organizations, livestock marketers, and meat processors are in attendance.

4 Nebraskans

Four Nebraskan's are prominent on the 77-member board of directors. They are Elton Berck, president of the Nebraska Farmers Union, Oscar Bredthauer of Grand Island, representing the Livestock Feeders Association, Melvin Kuska of Fairmont and James Volk of Battle Creek.

Nebraska has served as the meeting place for the group twice since the board was organized. The board had previously met in Omaha in 1956 and in Norfolk in 1958.

The livestock and meat industry in Nebraska has ranked first among all states in the amount of beef dollars going to support the national program and fourth in pork investments in the national promotion program.

In terms of total dollars from the livestock industry, only Iowa exceeded the promotion effort of Nebraska in the combined cattle-hog-sheep industry program.

2 Agents Lose Part Of Cover

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Two state undercover agents lost an important part of their cover Tuesday night when they were robbed in Omaha.

The agents told Omaha police they were robbed of $280 and forced to remove their trousers when they attempted to make an undercover purchase of heroin.

Authorities said the agents were State Patrol officer C.A. Franssen, and Robert K. Atkisson, a civilian working with the patrol.

The agents told police they had arranged to buy $100 worth of heroin from a man they were to meet at a corner.

When they drove to the corner they were met by two men and not the man from whom they planned to purchase the heroin.

One the suspects displayed a gun and ordered the agents out of the car and the other suspect pulled a knife, the agents said.

The agents were ordered to walk to a building in a nearby park where the robbery and disrobing occurred.

The agents drove pantless to police headquarters to report the theft of the cash, their revolvers and billfolds. Atkisson said he lost his watch.

Nixon Ought To Have Right To Impound Funds — Thone

Congressman Charles Thone Wednesday said Congress should recognize the President's right to impound funds that have been appropriated.

But, he noted, "I further propose that if Congress does not approve of presidential cuts, it should have the power to force him to restore spending by means of a vote of a majority in each house of Congress."

That "sensible compromise," Thone said in his weekly newsletter, would "give the President necessary budgetary control and give the Congress the final say-so on spending."

Up to now, the First District Republican congressman said, "we have had far too much partisan political rhetoric about the impoundment issue."

Thone said President Nixon has "shown more sense" in controlling federal spending than Congress.

"The case has certainly been made for holding down federal spending," he said.

"We have (economic) controls now because of inflation caused primarily by a federal government that has spent far more than it received. Those controls only cause more problems than they solve."

Thone said "the only cure is to balance the federal budget," and Nixon "has been making some effort in this direction."

As a result of his impoundment of money appropriated by the Congress, the federal deficit for the last fiscal year was about $15 billion, instead of $23 billion, Thone noted.

The $7.7 billion in impounded funds represented just 3.1% of total appropriations, Thone said, the two largest impoundments being $2.9 billion in highway funds and $1.6 billion in defense appropriations.

"Some may quarrel with the President's priorities," he said, "but none can quarrel with the need for priorities. The fact of the matter is that Congress has set no priorities."

State Investment Officials Say Student Loans 'Not The Best'

By United Press International

Members of the State Investment Council agreed informally Wednesday that student loans do not fit the bill, if the purpose of investing state retirement funds is to get the best return possible.

William Riley of Grand Island said there are presently better investments if all factors are taken into consideration. He cited long-term corporate bonds as an example, despite the 8¾ interest rate available through the student loan program.

The council earlier this year stopped any additional flow of state trust fund money into the student loan program beyond a previously authorized $1.1 million.

State investment officer James Marbach said Wednesday at some point the council must make a firm decision on the philosophy of state trust fund investments.

There have been defaults on some of the student loans authorized by the council.

While a student borrower is in school, the federal government pays the principal and interest. However, in case of a default, the federal government guarantees only return of the principal.

Marbach said nine months passed between the time the council submitted a claim for return of the principal of one defaulted loan and the actual receipt of the cash. During that period, the money could not be used for other interest earning activities.

With the lessening of sources of educational loans, there will be pressure on the council to resume the state program, Marbach predicted.

Bishop Copeland Dies; Formerly Of Nebraska

Bishop Kenneth Copeland

Houston (AP) — Kenneth W. Copeland, resident bishop for the Houston area of the United Methodist Church, died here Tuesday after becoming ill while attending a church conference in Mexico City.

Church officials said Copeland, 61, was hospitalized Monday after returning from a World of Methodism meeting.

Copeland, the former bishop of the Nebraska area of the South Central Jurisdiction of the United Methodist Church, was appointed bishop of the Houston area and the Gulf Coast Conference in 1968.

The bishop was a past president of the World Division of the General Board of Missions of the United Methodist Church and was in charge of United Methodist missions in 30 countries.

Copeland also served that board's joint commission on education and cultivation.

He was elected to the Methodist episcopacy in June 1960. Before becoming a bishop, Copeland held pastorates in Corsicana, Cooper, Dallas, Wichita Falls, San Antonio and Haskell in Texas, and in Stillwater, Okla.

Survivors include his widow and two daughters.

Funeral arrangements were pending.

Lexington Escapee Recaptured

Lexington, Neb. (AP) — Police Wednesday captured a suspect wanted by federal authorities, hours after the man walked away from the Lexington Community Hospital Tuesday night.

Officers said Gary Meadows, 27, was found walking down a county road. He was picked up after a local resident who saw him phoned police.

Meadows, 27, became ill Monday night in jail and was taken to the hospital for treatment.

Authorities said Meadows, a native of Indiana, is being held for alleged parole violation.

Topless Shows May Be Banned In Fremont

Fremont, Neb. (AP) — A city council committee Thursday will determine if an ordinance banning topless entertainment will go before the full council.

City Administrator Jack Sutton said the ordinance was patterned after ordinances adopted in Omaha and Kearney.

If approved, it would allow the city to revoke or suspend the liquor license of any establishment allowing a nude performance. The definition of "nudity" would include topless appearances.

Two Fremont establishments now offer topless entertainment, authorities said.

Plans Told To Prevent Fatalities

Plans have been made to get the cooperation of county and municipal authorities for a coordinated effort in preventing traffic fatalities this month and for the balance of the year, the superintendent of the State Patrol said Wednesday.

Col. C. J. Kruger said the program will be in connection with Gov. J. James Exon's August Traffic Safety Campaign.

The patrol chief noted that predictions have been made that Nebraska will surpass 500 in road fatalities before Dec. 31. He said the state can expect that nearly 25,000 persons will suffer disabling injuries in Nebraska traffic accidents this year "and we can also be assured that the economic losses resulting from traffic accidents will exceed $300,000 every day for the balance of the year."

Kruger said special enforcement is being directed to those locations which have had high accident frequency rates. The support of local enforcement officers will be asked to help assure a united front on controlling violations which most often are contributing factors in mishaps.

"We hope to zero in on the 'had been drinking' driver, the person who does not conform to the provisions of laws defining right-of-way, the speeder, and the careless operator who has proved to be most susceptible to accident involvement," Kruger said.

1,200 Expected At NU Field Day Near Scottsbluff

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb. (AP)—About 1,200 persons are expected to attend the annual Field Day at the University of Nebraska's Scottsbluff experiment station Friday.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Howard Ottoson, associate dean of the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture.

Prehistoric Bison Hunt Site Found

Crawford (UPI) — Scientists excavating at a site 24 miles northwest of here said that the excavation has proved that man was involved in the slaughter of bison thousands of years ago.

Dr. Larry Agenbroad, earth science professor at Chadron State College, said the digging turned up a large number of partially fossilized bones and spear points, which prove that the American Indian was involved in bison hunts in prehistoric days.

Three spear points and parts of five more were found during the digging this summer, Agenbroad said. He estimated that from 60 to 80 bison were uncovered.

ABA Calls For Probe Into Lawyers' Activities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Bar Association Wednesday approved a resolution calling for investigation of the ethical conduct of lawyers involved in the Watergate matter.

The measure was adopted by both the ABA assembly and the House of Delegates which makes policy for the 170,000-member lawyers organization.

It was a softened compromise version that emerged after consideration of sharply worded measures introduced when the convention opened last week.

Before the annual ABA meeting ended Wednesday, the House of Delegates also voted 122 to 70 to go on record as favoring removal of criminal penalties for private possession of small amounts of marijuana.

On Watergate, the assembly rejected an amendment that would have urged the state bar associations, which have responsibility for lawyer discipline, to delay action until disposition of any criminal charges against lawyers involved.

The resolution makes no direct mention of Watergate, but takes notice of revelations in the press and before judicial and congressional proceeding.

Another proposed assembly amendment rejected would have expelled from the ABA any members who have admitted to committing perjury or to other unethical behavior. This proposal was criticized as violating the ABA's requirement for a hearing before removal.

The request to await disposition of any criminal charges came from past ABA President Whitney North Seymour of New York. It touched off a wave of opposition from members who complained that the profession itself is on trial and should take action.

Seymour said he was interested in fairness to those involved. "It's important that we not sweep these lawyers into a different category," he said. That brought a stiff reply from Joe W. Henry of Pulaski, Tenn., an author of one of the sharply worded original Watergate resolutions.

"The issue is simply whether or not we're going to promptly bring under scrutiny lawyers whose conduct is suspect regardless of criminal (charges)," he said.

The time has come, he declared, "to belly up to the buzzsaw and do something about this."

Henry said he had abandoned his original intention to name the lawyers involved, alleging that to do so would put the resolution over the maximum limit of 300 words.

The resolution as approved says "prompt and vigorous investigation and appropriate action should be taken forthwith."

Phase 5 To Be Phase-Out

Washington (UPI) — The White House hopes to end all government wage and price controls as soon as possible, perhaps by the end of the year, high administration officials said Wednesday.

They said the administration wants to shift as quickly as possible from the Phase IV controls, which begin Monday, to a Phase V "Phase-Out" of all government controls on the economy, returning it to a free market basis.

One spokesman said the White House is counting on increased production, especially of food, as well as government action to dampen the inflationary pressures so that controls can be lifted without the return of inflation.

Chairman Herbert Stein of the President's Council of Economic Advisers said the public was more prepared for this complete phase-out now because most businessmen and other Americans appear to be "disillusioned" with the controls, although he said this disillusionment is apparently "only skin deep."

"We will get out of controls," Stein told an American Bar Association luncheon in Washington. But he said President Nixon's use of economic controls would make it easier for future presidents to put similar restraints on the free economy.

The administration assurances that it wants to get out of controls came from several spokesmen in widely scattered parts of the country the day after Phase IV regulations were announced for most of the economy. Generally, firms may increase prices only to the extent of their increased costs.

Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent told the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce that Phase V will be a "phase-out" to a free economy. But in the meantime, he said Phase IV would be a period in which "other economic forces can work effectively to slow down inflation without subjecting the public to the severe price jolts which might otherwise occur."

In Miami, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz told the Economic Society of Southern Florida that Phase IV was moving the economy toward private decision-making and "Phase V will be phased out."

High administration sources said the White House hoped the phase-out to a free economy could come by the end of this year, although none of the official spokesmen went on record predicting an end to controls that soon.

USDA Predicts Rise In Price Of Food To Average 18-22%

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department predicted Wednesday that food prices at the end of 1973 will average 18 to 22 per cent above prices at the end of last year.

The department also predicted that the amount of food each person eats may decline for the first time in eight years.

The predictions by the department's Outlook and Situation Board were refinements on a report by the board Tuesday predicting that food prices at the end of the year would be about 20 per cent higher than last year.

The board also said that, for the second consecutive year, restaurant prices are rising at a slower pace than at-home prices—bringing the average price increase for all foods down two to three percentage points.

Last year's decline in the rate of restaurant-price increases was the first time that that had happened in six years.

Grocery prices will be closer to 18 per cent above last year if demand declines or if estimates of this fall's harvest are achieved or exceeded, the board said. If the reverse is true, prices would move toward the upper end of the range, the board said.

The wording of the board's summary indicates that the board feels most of the price increases have occurred already.

The summary also predicted that, because of higher prices, expenditures for food are expected to increase faster than increases in disposable personal income—a trend that goes against department arguments that food prices do not go up as fast as wages.

Per capita food consumption may be one per cent below last year, the board said, with a two per cent decline "for livestock-related foods outweighing a one per cent increase for crop foods. Meat and egg consumption will drop the most, followed by poultry. Fish and dairy products will stay about the same."

The board said people are eating more fruit, more processed potatoes and vegetables and using more vegetable oils. But consumption of fresh vegetables and potatoes, coffee and cocoa are declining, it said.

The board attributed a 10 per cent drop this spring over last spring in red meat consumption to "consumer resistance to sharply higher prices as well as limited supplies." Consumption of red meat this pring was at its lowest level in seven years.

The board also said that although food consumption at home will be down slightly, sharp increases in exports will result in essentially no build-up of crop reserves this year.

Crime (Ouch) Sure Doesn't (Ouch) Pay!

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A 15-year-old boy learned the hard way that "crime doesn't pay."

He cut his hand breaking a window to get into the home of David W. Rall. Inside, he dropped a stereo turntable when a dog barked, alerting a neighbor, Robert L. Williams.

Williams, armed with a pistol, took after the fleeing youth, who lost his sneakers in flight. While running and looking back, he ran into a parked car, breaking his nose and suffering a minor knee fracture.

Williams, after catching up with the fugitive, hit him on the head with his gun. The youngster climbed over a fence and was met by dogs, who nipped his buttocks and legs.

The boy is in his parents' custody pending further action.

Wheat At $4.24 A Bushel

CHICAGO (AP) — Continued interest in buying wheat for delivery in September and December drove prices up to the daily increase allowed Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

It was the eighth consecutive day prices reached the board's allowed increase of a maximum of 10 cents a day.

Wheat for delivery in September closed at $4.24 a bushel. Trading for delivery in those two months and other future months hit the 10 cent limit at the opening. There were few sellers and the volume of trade was estimated at about one million bushels.

Although it is difficult to determine a normal volume of trade, before the price started hitting the limit eight days ago, more than 36 million bushels were traded. The first day the limit was reached, volume went down to around 18 million bushels and has steadily declined since.

Student Loan Group Delays Stock Offering

Washingto (AP) — The Student Loan Marketing Association Wednesday announced that because of "unfavorable market conditions" it will delay a proposed offering of 700,000 shares of common stock to educational and financial indstitutions.

The association said the delay will be for about one month. The proposed offering had been schedule to be completed by mid-August.

The Student Loan Marketing Association only recently was organized under government sponsorship to provide additional funds to universities and other institutions to be used in student loans.

Kopechne Roommate Files Suit Over Alleged Telephone Tap

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of Mary Jo Kopechne's roommates at the time she drowned in July 1969 has filed a suit charging that three Watergate figures took part in placing a illegal wiretap on her telephone.

Margaret Carroll filed the civil suit n U.S. District Court late Tuesday against John D. Ehrlichman, John J. Caulfield and Anthony T. Ulasewicz.

Under federal law, if the suit is successful, she could receive $100 from each defendant for every day her phone in her Georgetown residence was tapped and up to $500,000 in punitive damages.

Published reports said the alleged wiretap was part of a plan to gather evidence against Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who was the driver of the car in which Miss Kopechne drowned on Martha's Vineyard, Mass.

Another part of the plan, the reports said, was to establish a lavish New York apartment in which handsome men would seduce Miss Kopechne's girl friends. Apparently none of the girls ever entered the apartment.

Caulfield and Ulasewicz, both former New York policemen, joined the White House staff in early 1969 and began performing a variety of investigative functions at Ehrlichman's request, according to testimony by Caulfield before the Watergate committee.

Starvation Grips 13 Million

Geneva (UPI) — Thirteen million people, twice as many as earlier believed, are now facing famine because of drought in sub-Sahara Africa, the League of Red Cross Societies said Wednesday.

It said half of these people are children less than 15 years old.

Of the 24 million inhabitants of the six sub-Sahara, or Sahelian, countries, 12 million are threatened, the league said.

A further one million persons are in danger in Ethiopia, which is not actually a part of the region, it said.

Adding to the human suffering, the league reported, is the loss by drought victims of 80% or more of their livestock.

The Red Cross said that although its assistance is vital, "only governments themselves with the help of the United Nations specialized agencies can hope to find a satisfactory, long-term solution to the problems and the human suffering caused by the drought."

The league gave the following country-by-country figures:

—Chad: Of a total population of 3.7 million, 2 million are affected. Of these, 300,000 are children and 100,000 persons are in immediate danger. 80% of their livestock has been lost.

—Mali: With a population of 5 million, as many as 4 million are affected; 95% of the herds of nomadic people have died.

—Mauritania: With 1.2 million inhabitants, the country has at least 1 million of its population affected. 80% of the livestock has died.

—Niger: Of the 4.5 million population, 1.5 million need immediate assistance. One half of these are children.

—Senegal: 2.5 million people are threatened, including 1 million children.

—Upper Volta: Of 5.5 million inhabitants, 1 million are considered severely affected.

—Ethiopia: One million people are severely affected out of a total population of 26 million, especially in the provinces of Wollo, Tigre and Shoa.

Unappreciated Python Walker Leaves Town

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pedestrians retreated hastily and many cars came to a screeching halt along famed Hollywood Boulevard Tuesday as Richard Lee Gehring took a stroll — with a 7-foot python wrapped about him.

Police were not amused, and conducted the 19-year-old, unemployed youth to a stationhouse. He was freed when he promised to leave town the next day.

Waverly Sewage Plant Backed

Waverly — Citizen support was voiced this week during the Waverly City Council's public hearing on a proposed $500,000 sewage treatment plant.

Wayne Marolf, mayor, said several witnesses spoke out in support of the plant during the hour-long public hearing.

Among the witnesses was Dale Siefkes, school superintendent, who told the council that the treatment plant would be beneficial for the new elementary school now under construction.

"Everyone knew that we needed the plant," Marolf said in regard to the fact that no opposition was expressed during the hearing.

The public hearing was one step in the lengthy process of obtaining a federal grant for the proposed project.

Marolf said the city applied for the grant two years ago, at that time to build a $462,000 treatment plant. But he said he expects the project will total around $500,000, considering the price increases in the past two years.

The treatment plant, Marolf said, will replace the city's sewage lagoons and will serve the entire city.

The councilmen also agreed to meet Aug. 23 in special session to open bids for a proposed public swimming pool at Ash Hollow Park.

Bids on the project originally were opened in April, but came in too high at that time.

The second bidding will consider bids on all types of pools, provided the size is a minimum 3,600 square feet and the structure complies with state health standards.

In other action, the councilmen resumed discussion of the purchase of a used water tower from Ralston. Ralston has discontinued use of the 500,000 gallon tank since the city's water supply has been taken over by Omaha.

Waverly currently is supplied by a 45,000 gallon water tank and three wells.

Councilman Don Olson, however, pointed out that the community "would be in rather dire straits" in the event of a large fire, or a similar emergency in which large amounts of water were needed.

Olson said an engineer's estimate for a new gallon tank was $280,000. The council members think it is possible to obtain the used Ralston tank for half that figure, including installation and renovation.

The council also agreed at Monday night's meeting to amend the city dog ordinance to restrict the number of dogs owned by one household.

The council unanimously agreed that one household can have two dogs, six months old or older.

New Students Preregistration To Start Aug. 16

Children new to the Lincoln Public Schools can preregister for the fall semester starting Aug. 16, according to Eldon Heskett, director of student services.

Heskett said such children should register at their schools Aug. 16 or 17 or Aug. 20 to 24 between 9 a.m. and noon and 1 and 4 p.m.

A child transferring schools within Lincoln may register at his new school during the same times, he said.

Heskett also urged parents of transferring student to check with their child's new school during the registration period to make sure all records are in order, even if the old school was notified of the transfer last spring.

Bookstore Fronts For Mental Clinic

Broken Bow, Neb. (AP) — You've heard of those store fronts that advertise "Old Cameos" or some other unusual product as a false front for still more unusual activities in the back.

The Pioneer Book Store here is a very legitimate front for a mental health center.

That is according to the Rev. Loren Mullins of the United Methodist Church.

When the church sold property three years ago that included its office space, the back of a fabric store was rented and the pastor's office and counseling center were set up.

The Rev. Mr. Mullins said, "As it began to develop, we invited other churches of the area to join us."

So a non-profit corporation was formed and in a ecumenical spirit, the Methodists were joined by Lutherans, Episcopalians, Presbyterians and Disciples of Christ to buy the building and go into the book business.

"The philosophy was to provide a business place with the church involved," he said.

Then a satellite facility of the Mid-Nebraska Mental Health Center at Grand Island was established in the office and local ministers agreed to help with counseling.

A crisis line also was introduced.

A person browsing through the stands of books may little suspect the good work that goes on in the back room.

'Just Plain Hard Work' Keeps Her Young At 98

By Linda Olig
Star Staff Writer

It's been a long time since she lived in the sod house in York County where she was born on July 30, 1875.

But 98-year-old Emily Mook remembers those days well.

Her father homesteaded the land near Waco on which he built his family's sod house. The homestead has remained in the family to this day.

And Mrs. Mook recalls "the Indians coming to our place and begging for food. We gave them hams or whatever we had on hand . . . mostly meat."

Times have changed drastically since those days of homesteads and sod houses.

Life in America has changed, too. There is more time for recreation and more money to do just that.

But time weighs heavy on the hands of the elderly who are caught between the changing lifestyles.

Mrs. Mook, however, still retains her same outlook on life.

She attributes her long life to "just plain hard work." And she hasn't yet begun to slow down.

The major source of her pride lies in her hard work and independence.

Still in good health, she takes advantage of her every spare minute.

Mrs. Mook does her own housework and spends many hours toiling in her flower and vegetable gardens.

"I raise everything — cucumbers, tomatoes, beans, peppers, and I even have potatoes this year," she said.

She also has apple and peach trees — and, at the age of 98, even does her own canning.

Her recreation is squeezed in between the hours of hard work.

The one recreational "luxury" which she allows herself is a weekly meeting with the Kings and Queens Card Club where she has played pitch every Tuesday afternoon for the past 13 years.

That group observed her 98th birthday at its Tuesday afternoon meeting, and the party theme appropriately was "Keep Active and Young."

Hare Krishna Sect To Spend $1 Million

Those ascetic, bell-ringing disciples of the Hare Krishna sect, who pass out literature on the street, in exchange for donations, apparently are financial wizards. Their New York brethren are on the verge of purchasing a new international headquarters for an estimated $1 million. They're the young men who wear saffron gowns, shave their heads (except for a knot at the top) and constantly chant. They've come a long way since the first followers of the Guru Krishna opened a storefront temple in New York .

"Celebrate The Sun"

"There was every reason to believe that Harry Langendorf Pelican would make it big. Although he was hatched late in the season, the signs attending his birth were portentous and unique."

Sound familiar? Yup, it's Jonathan Livingston Seagull revisited. Only, the old bird, now become a pelican, is hardly recognizable in James Kavanaugh's new book, "Celebrate the Sun" (Nash Publishing).

Kavanaugh, — a former priest who received notoriety some years ago after making waves in the Catholic Church, and whose previous books (including "A Modern Priest Looks At His Outdated Church" and "There Are Men Too Gentle To Live Among Wolves") have met with considerable success — must have read "Jonathan" with some misgivings. For if Richard Bach's seagull ever had an antagonistic counterpart, Harry Pelican is it.

That "Celebrate the Sun" is a take-off on "Jonathan" is immediately apparent. It follows its precursor so closely with regard to style, content, and even format (this time, it's seaside portraits of pelicans), that comparisons are unavoidable.

However, the messages carried by each book are light years apart.

If you'll remember, Jonathan was the prototype of the upwardsly-mobile gull. Unsatisfied with being a "poor limited seagull," he spent his days and nights seeking perfection through flight. Skimming, circling, diving, and swooshing, his attempts to defy the laws of aerodynamics were geared towards proving his ambitious philosophy: "The gull sees farthest who flies highest."

Although Harry Pelican starts out in similar fashion (his father, determined to transform him into an "island prodigy," sees to it that his young son does his share of aerial cavorting), he soon becomes disillusioned with life as the highest and fastest-flying pelican on the island.

He finds that competitiveness has its drawbacks: ". . . as the days passed, he grew more determined and intense. He did not laugh as much, there was not time to laugh, there were records to set and goals to reach."

In a moment of soul-searching, he muses, "'I have no friends, only admirers. I have no joy, only ambition and endless striving. There is no goal which will satisfy me, no accomplishment which seems to give me rest.' "

Being the perfect pelican suddenly loses its importance, and he opts for a life of passive meditation wherein he has time to "celebrate the sun" and all of the other miracles that attend even the most ordinary pelican's existence.

His ultimate goal is essentially the same as that sought by Jonathan, but, with regard to means, Harry is hardly the All-American bird that Jonathan was.

Spurning aggressiveness, he becomes a feathered flower child: " 'Wisdom is not taught,' " said Harry Langendorf. 'Systems are taught. Wisdom comes from experiencing life, or it never comes at all. And life is its own discipline . . . Perhaps if we are not pushed and prodded or made to feel ashamed, we will achieve our growth — and our joy as well.' "

Kavanaugh does no better, no worse than Bach in weaving his dime-store philosophy. However, perhaps he can be excused for writing such a book. In attempting to counter Bach, his literary form was preordained.

That he chose to so limit himself is unfortunate, because Kavanaugh can do much, much better.

In all fairness though, for those who can stand it — and there must be quite a few who can, given the popularity of "Jonathan" — "Celebrate the Sun" does succeed in presenting the other side.

Horatio Alger Livingston Seagull has met his nemesis.

Teen Caught Between Religion, Horse

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I have always been a horse lover, and at age 13, I finally got my own horse. Now, two years later, we are sort of a team.

We (me and my horse) were selected to represent our county at a six-state horse exposition. I was thrilled, but here is my problem:

The horse show falls on the same dates as the High Holy Days, and I am Jewish!

What can I do? This means everything in the world to me, and I am really not all that Jewish, but my parents are, and they won't hear of my taking part in the horse show on the High Holy Days. I am so unhappy about this I am becoming deeply prejudiced against Judaism. What can I say to my parents to convince them that horses mean as much to me as their religion means to them?

LOVES HORSES

DEAR LOVES: I can't think of anything you can say to convince them. Even tho it's a dead heat, they win, because they're the parents, and you're the minor. Sorry.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem which is ruining my life. I have been to doctors everywhere and none of them can help me. In fact, several of them have suggested I am "imagining" things, but I KNOW I'm not.

I can smell a strange unpleasant odor about myself all the time. I bathe every morning and put on fresh underwear, but I still smell bad. After I've done my housework, I bathe again and put on fresh underwear. No improvement. It is not perspiration, either. I use plenty of soap, deodorant, and cologne, but I can't get rid of that terrible odor. Even tho no one has mentioned it to me, I know they can smell it, too, so I don't ever get close to anyone.

The doctors say I am a healthy woman. My scalp is always clean (I don't even have dandruff!), and I brush my teeth and gargle several times a day. And it's not my feet, either.

Please tell me how to get rid of this terrible odor! I can't live like this any longer.

SMELLS BAD IN ROANOKE

DEAR SMELLS: Go to one more doctor. A psychiatrist. He may be able to sniff out the answer.

DEAR ABBY: My dad has been bald for 18 years or longer. I have seen pictures of him when he had hair, and they just don't look like Dad.

Mom got him to get a hairpiece — the kind they cut and style for the individual. When Dad came home with it he looked so strange to me. He is 39 years old, Abby, and he doesn't have to look like a kid of 20. Mom is crazy about it, and I'm not sure whether Dad wears it to please Mom or himself but he wears it all the time.

I can't get used to it. Do you think he ought to wear it or not?

HIS DAUGHTER (Age 18)

DEAR DAUGHTER: If Dad likes it, he should wear it. Keep quiet. You'll get used to it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old boy with a question to ask you. What do you think of long hair on a boy?

My father is so old-fashioned it's pitiful. He thinks if a boy has long hair, he is on drugs or something. He makes me wear my hair real short, and I feel like a freak. Abby, I wouldn't think of taking drugs, but I want to be one of the crowd. How can I get my father to let me wear my hair a little longer?

GEORGIA PEACH

DEAR PEACH: I think it's what is IN a head that is important — not what is ON it. I see nothing wrong with long hair if it's kept clean and neat. However, a sign of maturity is being able to play by the rules. Don't nag or whine. When your father notices your maturity, he may change his mind.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hi, hello, and howdy-do.

We are the chattering, jabbering Macaws (Ara chloroptera).

We are members (but larger ones, at that) of the Parrot family.

I am Roberta, the blue and gold Macaw. And my friend here is Bogart, the red and blue Macaw.

One of the funniest things that has happened to me in my more than 20 years of life is that, for many of those years, I was called Robert.

Then one day I got tired of all that and decided to teach everyone a lesson. So I laid an egg. In fact, I have laid eggs here at the Lincoln Children's Zoo for the past three summers, but none of them have hatched into baby Roberts or Robertas, whichever the case may be.

"I guess we are noisy creatures."

Bogart and I have lived in Lincoln since 1958 when we were donated to the Antelope Zoo (where we spend our winters) by a missionary family living in Guiana.

Both of us just love to talk. We have fairly wide vocabularies, but we can't be made to talk when we aren't in the mood. It just so happens that when the zoo closes and we have a bit of privacy, we get in the mood and talk a blue streak. I guess we are very noisy creatures.

If you are wondering how, or why, birds talk, I have heard of several theories which just may be the answer.

"We certainly could fly away. But we don't."

One is that it gives us something to do — we love to imitate human or animal sounds.

The other is that we talk for our own protection. Thus, we confuse our predators by imitating the sounds of other animals.

NOISY BIRDS . . . Robert and Bogart Macaw can talk a blue streak.

Here at the zoo we are free to come and go as we please. We have no cage as such, our wings aren't clipped, and our feet aren't chained. We certainly could fly away. But we don't.

We know where our home is and where we are loved.

Everything we need is here. Food. Water. Shelter.

Also, Bogart and I know if we were to fly from our home, we would be bothered.

Our relatives still residing deep in the jungles of South America live and fly in bands or flocks.

They feast on seeds and fruits, and so do we.

Bogart and I have very dexterous tongues. With them, we can crack peanuts and remove the husks while our feet do the holding. By the way, our beaks are very powerful. We can grip objects with them, and we could also snap a finger in two if we felt the urge.

A Donkey Ate Her Tutu

It's hard to laugh when the joke's on you.

Eeyore, the Sicilian Donkey at the Lincoln Children's Zoo, got an unexpected snack the other day.

And the circumstances of his tasty treat caused wide-spread belly laughs, chuckles, and well-concealed smirks.

But there was no laughter for four-year-old Rebecca Carr, whose tutu was the source of Eeyore's snack.

The teary-eyed Rebecca in her half eaten tutu was among 60 costumed children who were guests of the zoo as a result of their neighborhood circus which netted $90.25 for the zoo's coffers.

The three annual children's circuses have brought donations of more than $200 to the Lincoln Children's Zoo.

Opening lead - queen of diamonds.

The experienced declarer's greatest advantage over the run-of-the-mill performer is his ability to read how the unseen cards are divided. Playing a hand perfectly is much easier if you know the position of all 52 cards.

Assume you're in five clubs and East cashes two diamonds before returning a trump. Obviously, winning the rest of the tricks would be simple enough if you knew the location of the queen of hearts. But you don't, so what you do, in a sense, is embark on a search and destroy mission.

You draw two rounds of trumps, cash the A-K of spades, then ruff a spade. The sole purpose of this maneuver is to force the defenders to reveal their spade distribution.

You now ruff a diamond in dummy, West showing out, and thus learn that East started with six diamonds. Earlier you discovered he had started with two clubs.

Next you ruff dummy's last spade, this time learning he started with four spades. This is a highly satisfactory development because, with 12 of East's 13 cards accounted for, he must have started with precisely one heart.

Accordingly, you lead the king and another heart, finessing the jack with a 100 per cent certainty that it will win the trick.

If you hadn't gone to the bother of compelling the opponents to disclose their length in spades, diamonds and clubs, you might have taken a heart finesse the wrong way and gone down one. All of which suggests that the miraculous feats the so-called "born card-player" achieves are much more often the fruit of hard work than inherent genius.

Lincoln General Seeks Okay Of Rate Hike

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln General Hospital officials urged City Council endorsement of a proposed 5.9% rate hike in room charges which, they contend, is needed to match spiraling expenses.

Lincoln General Administrator Robert Brungard told city lawmakers that there have been no rate raises in 15 months.

Under Phase III guidelines, hospitals have been prohibited from hiking room rents, he said, even though the cost of other services and materials has continued to climb. As a result, the hospital has had to absorb those extra costs.

The room rates are scheduled to go into effect Sept. 1. The new rate schedule would increase many standard room fees by $4 a day.

Overall, Lincoln General is proposing a 1973-74 budget of $8,817,439, which represents a 3% overall increase from last year's operating budget.

Councilman Bob Sikyta voiced concern over the amount of money being lost on medicare bills.

Every non-Medicare patient is paying $3.72 on each day's hospital bill to make up what Washington won't pay for Medicare patient costs.

Sikyta said, "I know society's screwed up, but isn't there something we can do?"

Said Brungard, "Nobody can beat the feds on medicare. They'll decrease their payments if anything."

But, he said, regardless of whether patients are on medicare or not, all patients are treated equally, he assured city lawmakers.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf asked if there was anyway Lincoln General could lower room rent costs if additional patients are handled.

Brungard replied, "That's pretty much impossible. When the rest of the economy decreases, we can too."

The council also reviewed several other budgets in their three-hour plus night session, including taking a look at the Lincoln Transportation System's proposed $1,271,550 budget.

Finance Director James Mallon explained that operating expenses have climbed to $339,-31 compared with last year's $247,920 due mainly to rising fuel costs. He noted that there's been a 60% hike in fuel costs in the past few months.

And just because of the energy crisis and the uncertainty of future fuel bills, Mallon said $200,000 is being requested as a contingency item.

That money would be used to absorb increased fuel costs and the cost of new buses if Lincolnites decide to ride the buses instead of driving their cars.

Council members again questioned the desirability of taking $325,000 out of revenue sharing funds to subsidize the bus system.

Councilwoman Sue Bailey said she thought revenue sharing funds should not be used to pay for an on-going deficit. Instead she said she would favor using revenue sharing dollars for programs to up ridership or for studies to provide new elements in transportation planning.

Council members also asked what progress the LTS Board has been making in increasing ridership. Mallon noted, "We're running about a half a million passengers more this year than last."

Councilwoman Helen Boosalis wanted to know when the LTS board planned on placing route time schedules on bus stop posts, while Councilman Dick Baker questioned if enough funds were budgeted for maintenance expenses.

The council also reviewed the auditorium's proposed $341,726 budget. Manager Ike Hoig explained that $3,400 is needed to patch up the roof and noted that the 18-year-old roof will need complete replacing within the next several years.

Additional Councilman Steve Cook questioned if $3,000 proposed for remodeling several meeting rooms is enough money. Cook, who helped design the building in the late 1950's, suggested that Hoig obtain several estimates on the remodeling.

And Sikyta questioned whether the city was doing enough to meet the need for convention space.

Hoig remarked that he gets some quizzical looks from convention goers when, "I take them back to a shower room and say this is one of our meeting rooms. It doesn't smell like a shower room, but it sure looks like it."

Citing the city sales tax Sikyta emphasized the value of bringing more conventions into the city, saying, "For every dollar that's spent in Lincoln, that's more dollars coming into our coffers."

Hoig noted that for the first time in history the auditorium is $24,000 in the black.

"The key to our success is rock concerts — rock shows have been paying our way," he stated.

The council also heard a request from Bernard Patton, director of the Humane Society, for $25,000 allocation.

Last year, the council budgeted $35,000 for the humane society, with $15,000 of that amount to be spent on beefing up services.

But Patton told city lawmakers Wednesday night, that $15,000 was never spent. Instead, he requested to use the funds to build another kennel.

When questioned by Boosalis why that money was not spent as programmed, Patton noted that 24-hour service was still provided using other funds.

But, he said, he has a personnel problem and not enough room to hold all the animals at the shelter.

The shelter is operating at full capacity, he said. "It's getting to me. I run 30 to 40 animals a day through the crematory."

Under city ordinance, he is only required to keep animals for 72 hours, but noted he tries to save the healthier animals for adoption.

But, because of doubling food costs, he said he has had to cut down the number of animals he keeps alive on a long term basis.

The council also reviewed the budgets for data processing and the city garage. The mayor is proposing to budget $375,088 to purchase a new computer, an IBM 370, which is now being leased.

He was elected a delegate to the Omaha City Charter Convention in 1956.

Survivors include his widow, a son, two daughters, a sister and eleven grandchildren. Funeral services will be at 9 a.m. Saturday at Holy Cross Church.

Broderick Crawford Weds Widow

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — Actor Broderick Crawford was married on Wednesday at the St. Louis County Courthouse to Mary Alice Michel, a Los Angeles widow.

It was the third marriage for Cawford, 61, who is best known in recent years for his portrayal of a grumpy cop in the television series "Highway Patrol." It was the second marriage for Mrs. Michel, 49, who met Crawford in Hollywood.

The couple obtained a marriage license in St. Louis County Tuesday, one day after Crawford completed a six-week engagement in the play "Born Yesterday" at a county playhouse.

Crawford won an Oscar in 1949 for his portrayal of Willie Stark in "All the King's Men."

State Pay Plan Extension Urged

Gov. J. James Exon proposed Wednesday that the current pay plan for fiscal 1974 be extended through fiscal 1975 with a 5% salary raise for the 15,000 state employes under the state personnel system.

The raise would advance employes from their current pay grade to the next higher one in the pay plan.

In addition, Exon said agencies would be allowed an additional 1½% of their salary budgets to correct any inequities.

Exon did add an eighth step to the pay plan to provide pay raises for "career" employes who would otherwise be unable to receive a pay raise. State Personnel Director William C. Peters indicated that relatively few employes fall in this category.

A total price tag was unavailable, budget officials said, because Gus Lieske, director of the Executive Office of Management and Budget, is vacationing.

Peters predicted that the majority of employes in the pay plan will be pleased with their 1974-75 pay raises, although he acknowledged that there will always be some who are not satisfied.

Exon added that a salary survey conducted by the Personnel Department indicates that the present pay plan provides salaries comparable to those paid by private industry.

Peters said no effort will be made during the 1974 Legislature to bring the employes of the constitutional officers and the Legislature under the pay plan, although inequities exist.

"Sooner or later, they're going to want in the state personnel system. They're going to find that it is better to have a pay plan than to have no pay plan at all," he said.

Peters also reported that discussion is still going on concerning the proposed merger of the state personnel system with those now under the federal merit system.

"Some areas of the merger have not been worked out including classifications and records," Peters said.

Thai Grumbling Worrisome

. . . Labor, Farmers, Students Are Stirred Up

©The New York Times

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

Bangkok, Thailand — There is more grumbling in Thailand these days that at any time since World War II, and the government is worried, as are Thailand's neighbors.

The Thai military establishment, which has ruled almost continuously for four decades without significant opposition or difficulty, is faced with a labor movement showing remarkable animation, with angry farmers who have to restrict their consumption of rice for the first time in their lives and with a disciplined corps of students that has suddenly become a powerful political bloc.

Thailand's neighbors are concerned over the cracks opening in the traditionally stable, social and political structure for two reasons.

One is that Thailand, with 39 million inhabitnats the most populous nation on the Southeast Asian mainland, has been considered the main anchor of the regional containment of Communism since the 1950's. New domestic pressures in Thailand could change this.

The second — and the main — reason for Thailand's preeminence in Southeast Asia is rice porduction. In normal times she is roughly the equal of the United States as the world's leading exporter. Without her rice many Asians would face starvation.

Rice Important

The importance of Thai rice has become especially obvious during the current world shortage and the cumulative effect of three years of drought here. Diplomats from Cambodia, Laos, the Philippines, Indonesia and many other countries have been lining up in ministry waiting rooms, literally begging to buy rice. They have often gone away empty-handed.

As for the domestic situation in Thailand, the current symptoms of trouble seem minor compared with the turmoil regarded as commonplace in other countries. But Thais, accustomed to thinking of their country as an island of Buddhist tranquility and temporal stability, regard any upheaval seriously.

An example is the emergence of labor-union activity.

Organized labor has always been viewed with great suspicion by the wealthy generals who govern Thailand, and who often have major interests in private enterprise. No national labor organization is permitted, and only about 10,000 workers belong to unions.

Bangkok was startled in May when steel workers, called an illegal wildcat strike, risking reprisals, not to mention the possibility of arrest and long imprisonment.

The strike began after a worker at the small Thailand Steelworks Co. was injured by hot metal and asked to be taken to a hospital. The manager refused and another employe portested bitterly that workers were being mistreated.

At that the manager called the police, the complaining worker was jailed for several weeks and 300 others decided to strike.

The strikers marched on Government House, demanding that they be allowed to present a petition to the premier, Field Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn. He refused to see them or to take any action, and the strike collapsed after 29 days because the workers' families were going hungry.

What surprise and delighted the population of this shabby city of 3.5 million was that the strike ran its course without police intervention. Furthermore, the company felt constrained to grant each striker the equivalent of $10 in compensation.

Tolerance

The new spirit of tolerance taking root in some government quarters seemed to be confirmed in a speech last month to the American Chamber of Commerce here by Col. Narong Kittikachorn, son of the premier and son-in-law of Marshal Praphas Charusathein, deputy chief, interior minister, Boy Scout commander and the holder of many other posts.

Taking issue with the traditional authoritarian approaches of both his father and father-in-law, Narong, a kind of ombudmsan assigned to look into corruption, opium traffic and malfeasance, said: "Internal security cannot be the status quo of prisoner and guards, as in a prison camp. Internal security must mean security and freedom for the people, and modern governments have to live with events affecting the status quo as long as they are nonviolent."

Despite the efforts of Narong and other moderates to cool down dangerous situations, the government seems to be over its head in problems. The most serious is the economic crisis facing farm people, who are 85% of the population.

After years of drought farmers have reached a point at which their families can be fed only on borrowed money. Despite years of vast American aid, Thailand still has no effective agricultural credit program, so farmers must borrow at calamitous interest rates from land speculators, who usually require deeds as collateral.

Some have left the land to seek uncertain fortunes in Bangkok and other cities, some have turned to banditry — the crime rate has increased sharply — and some have joined the Communist-led guerrillas, estimated to number 6,000, who are fighting the government.

Desperation and rural isolation have kept farmers from organizing much beyond local boycotts and occasional raids on food warehouses.

Activity Prohibited

In any case, political activity and parties have been prohibited since November, when Marshal Thanom and his colleagues voided the constitution, dissolved the legislature and declared martial law.

In the absence of any formal political counterpoise to the military regime, the 100,000 university students have surprisingly emerged this summer as perhaps the most important political force other than the army. The student movement began in June over a seemingly minor matter.

Last November Premier Thanom said his government could probably produce a new constitution in about three years and that in the interim the people should try to learn more about democracy. Meanwhile, Marshal Thanom and Marshal Praphas, due to retire on reaching their 60th birthdays, kept themselves in office this spring for another year, leaving little doubt that they intended their controls to be permanent.

In July nine students at Ramkamhaeng University were expelled after publishing a satirical magazine article alluding to the latest extension of military rule. The police confiscated the magazine and Premier Thanom told newsmen he felt bitterly insulted by it.

The government, apparently impressed by the vast, peaceful but potentially explosive demonstrations, saw to it that the expelled students were reinstated. The university rector resigned and the students were elated.

The press, which periodically suffers heavy governmental repression, was unanimous in its approval of the student movement. The Bangkok Post said:

"The rise of student power has been one of the most important developments in recent Thai history."

Maravich To Be In Omaha

When the National Basketball Association announced the Kansas City-Omaha Kings' schedule for the upcoming season, 14 games were set for Omaha's Civic Auditorium.

That is one less than last year, the first season for the two-city franchise. Atlanta, which features crowd-pleaser Pete Maravich, will make its first appearance in Omaha on Dec. 5.

While the Hawks will be at Civic Auditorium this season, two of the NBA's better teams will not — the Boston Celtics and the Phoenix Suns.

The rest of the league's teams will play in Omaha, including the world champion New York Knicks on Jan. 30. However, the prices on all tickets for the Kings' games have gone up from last year.

Doane's head football coach Ray Best has some good news and bad news. The good news is that Floyd Guillory will play this fall.

Guillory broke his ankle in the Tigers' first game of the season last year and then dropped out of school.

The Beaumont, Tex., native returned to Crete and went to summer school, earning a B+ average in his major. The running back was all-Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference his freshman year.

Guillory may also gain another year of eligibility if the NAIA approves his hardship case for last year, since he missed most of the season.

According to Best the NAIA executive committee has not acted upon Doane's request for another year of eligibility for Guillory, but is expected to do so before the season opener.

Low Grades Force Drop

Guillory dropped out of school because his accumulated grade average wasn't high enough to stay at Doane Best said.

However, the 5-9, 165-pounder will be eligible immediately for the NIAC because he has passed 24 hours of credit in the previous two semesters he attended classes according to Best.

Guillory, who is best known for his lateral movements and speed, has been playing semi-pro baseball this summer for the Crete town team to stay in shape.

While Doane, the defending NIAC champions, has Guillory back, the Tigers' weakest point is even weaker now that the two top returning prospects are not coming back.

Emile Sigee, who was the second-string quarterback last year and Mike Higgins, who is sitting out classes for at least this semester, were expected to battle for departed Leonard King's job.

However, Sigee ran into financial problems and Higgins had grade trouble and neither will be back.

Junior letterman Jack Vail, who only saw limited action last year, and freshmen Dave Rosenbaum, Gary Knapp and John Winter are now expected to vie for the position.

Concordia head football coach John Seevers has a prize recruit trying to start at quarterback for the Bulldogs as a freshman in his son, John, Jr.

The younger Seevers led Seward High School to a 10-0 record last year. The elder Seevers was also a quarterback in high school and college.

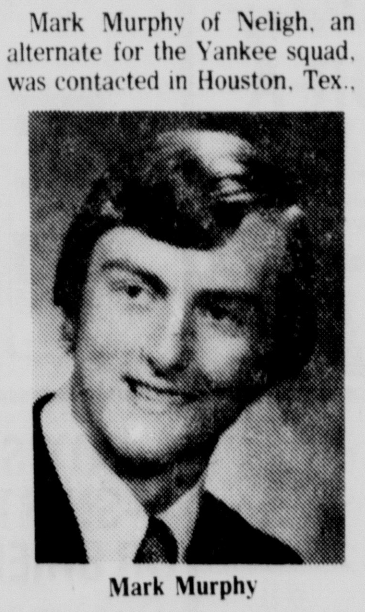
North All-Stars To Get Murphy

Wayne — The Nebraska Coaches Association all-star basketball committee had to go 850 miles Wednesday, but came up with a replacement for the North team, which opens training camp here Thursday at Wayne State College.

Mark Murphy of Neligh, an alternate for the Yankee squad, was contacted in Houston, Tex., after Omaha Northwest standout Mike Scanlon withdrew from the game in favor of playing in the state Class A American Legion baseball tournament at Columbus.



Mark Murphy

Murphy, a 6-3, 3½-year starter at Neligh, was a first-team Sunday Journal and Star Class C all-state selection last March after leading his team into the state tournament semifinals.

He had left Nebraska by car Tuesday with a friend enroute to Houston and was reached by phone late Wednesday afternoon. Officials said Murphy was flying from Houston to Omaha Wednesday to join the North team.

Gibson Surgery 'OK'

St. Louis (AP) — Veteran pitcher Bob Gibson underwent surgery Wednesday to remove torn cartilage from his right knee, and the St. Louis Cardinals' team physician said the operation was a success.

OU'S PENALTY 'SEVERE'

. . . Sooners On Probation For 2 Years

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Big Eight Conference dealt the University of Oklahoma football team, ranked No. 2 nationally in 1971 and 1972, a severe blow Wednesday by placing the Sooners on probation for two years for recruiting irregularities.

The Oklahoma basketball program was handed a similar period of probation, likewise for violations of recruiting rules.

In addition to the probation, the proud Sooner footballers, who skyrocketed into national prominence 2½ years ago by installing the Wishbone formation in midseason, will be barred from postseason competition and television appearances for two years.

Wade Walker, Oklahoma athletic director, said in Norman, Okla., he felt "the penalty was severe."

Oklahoma will be unable to play in bowl contests this season and in 1974 and cannot appear in televised games in 1974 and 1975.

The Sooners will honor their television contracts in 1973 under National Collegiate Athletic Association rules since these had been signed before the disciplinary action, taken Tuesday in Chicago by the league's faculty representatives, its governing body

Oklahoma plays Texas Oct. 13 in a televised contest and Nebraska Nov 23.

The conference action, announced in Kansas City at a midmorning news conference by Big Eight Commissioner Charles M. Neinas, also stripped the Sooners of the league football championship they won in 1972 and handed the title to Nebraska. Oklahoma forfeited four conference games.

Under the probation, Wendell Mosley, an assistant football coach, and Dennis Price, an assistant basketball coach, will be prohibited from recruiting for one year.

No limitations were placed on Oklahoma's basketball program other than the probationary period.

The football portion of the probation stemmed from the altering of high school transcripts of two freshmen players, quarterback Kerry Jackson and lineman Mike Phillips, both of Corpus Christi, Tex.

Jackson, who played in nine games, was ruled ineligible to compete the coming season, leaving Oklahoma no quarterback with varsity experience.

Assuming Oklahoma continues to flourish as a football power, Neinas estimated the probation would result in the loss of $1 to $2 million in bowl and television monies for the conference.

The Big Eight is the only major intercollegiate conference which divides all gross money from these sources equally among its members, meaning each would lose from $125,000 to $250,000.

Lou McCullough, athletic director at Iowa State, said after the ruling his school's athletic budget would have to be revised and that it could lose as much as $200,000 over the next three seasons.

Neinas said whether the Sooners forfeited non-conference games in which Jackson played, including the New Year Day's Sugar Bowl triumph over Penn State, would be up to Oklahoma and the schools involved. Penn State has said it would not ask for or accept a forfeit.

The conference found Oklahoma guilty of 10 football violations, three in basketball and one general violation.

The conference did not take away Phillips' eligibility, noting that its investigation revealed that no one at Oklahoma was involved in or had any prior knowledge of the alteration of Phillips' transcript. Phillips did not play in varsity games.

Oklahoma officials appealed to the NCAA to make Jackson eligible for the 1973 season but the appeal was denied.

Walker, obviously shaken by the penalty's severeity, said the Oklahoma program "wasn't built on infractions" and that the school would "dedicate ourselves to continue in our program and will take every step possible to insure that it won't happen again."

In Lincoln, Neb., Bob Devaney, who coached the Nebraska football team last season, said he doesn't "feel any glory" in winning the title on forfeits. However, Devaney, Nebraska's athletic director, said he did not feel it was unjust to take the title away from the Sooners.

The forfeits left Oklahoma tied for fifth place in the 1972 conference football standings.

Barry Switzer, Oklahoma's new football coach, said the penalty was "about what I expected." He added he wished it was 1975 and had said earlier that his team "would be affected if we can't play in a postseason game."

The first inkling of the Oklahoma irregularities came last April when Walker, at a news conference, announced the falsification of the transcripts of Jackson, first black quarterback in Sooner history, and Phillips. Walker said at that time the games in which Jackson played were being forfeited.

Walker also said the university had asked for and received the resignation of Bill Michael, offensive line coach.

Michael was not mentioned by name in the conference report on Oklahoma which made the probation effective Aug. 7, the day the action was taken in Chicago.

Chuck Fairbanks was head coach at Oklahoma last year He resigned after the close of the season in which the Sooners lost only to Colorado to take a similar position with the professional New England Patriots.

TIGHT RACE . . . Patsy's Reign (1A), Cowboy Cascio (7) near finish.

Track's First Turn Causes Rift

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

The first run of a five and one-half furlong race at the State Fairgrounds has been debated for a number of years.

The jockeys, and some of the owners, have claimed that the turn was too dangerous since the horses haven't had a chance to spread out before they reach the 'hairpin' curve, resulting in the field entering the turn tightly-bunched, ending in spills that have injured several riders and necessitated the destruction of certain horses.

Tuesday, the argument surfaced as the jockeys threatened not to ride in any of the five and one-half furlong races on Wednesday's card. Intervention by spokesmen for the Horesemen's Benevolent Protective Association (HBPA) resulted in the riders going through with their commitments for mounts, but an early-morning meeting was called for horseman in order to arrive at a conclusion whether to abide by the jockeys' wishes or to request that the races be re-written to four furlongs or six furlongs, thus eliminating the tendency for the field to enter the hairpin turn tightly-bunched.

In an almost 2-1 decision, the horsemen turned down the jockeys' request and voted to allow the conditions to stand for the remaining nine days of racing at the State Fairgrounds.

The jockeys retaliated at a Wednesday afternoon meeting, by voting not to accept mounts over the distance for the rest of the meet.

"We were informed yesterday (Tuesday) that the jockeys didn't want to ride any more five and one-half furlong races," R. E. Lee, Nebraska representative of the HBPA said while addressing the horsemen. "Now it's up to us. We have to decide if we want to abide by their wishes and ask for the increase in distance to three-quarters of a mile (six furlongs) or to ask for a half-mile reduction (four furlongs).

"I will concede that the first turn is dangerous, but the mile gate is closer to the turn than the five and one-half is," Lee continued. "I know that the horses tend to string out more in the mile since they have more of a distance to work with. On that five and one-half affair, they have to burn speed fast in order to get position for the rest of the race.

"But," he added, "The jockeys should have come forward during the commission meeting last fall and made their grievances known. Now, with only nine days remaining on the card is not the time to do it."

The jockeys drew support from owner Lee Bevilacqua, a HBPA board member, who argued that the turn was not only dangerous for the jockeys but for the horses as well.

"The management has said that they are willing to spend a million dollars to air-condition the grandstand," Bevilacqua said. "But what we need is a new track The handle would be twice as much and would pay for the new track in no time at all. It should be spent to at least improve the present conditions of the track.

"I would no sooner tell a jockey how to handle a horse around a turn than I would a pilot how to fly an airplane," he said metaphorically, "But to spend a million dollars on the grandstand and not on the track to eliminate that turn borders of idiocy."

"We're not concerned about the other tracks (Columbus and Atokad)," Fred Ecoffey, a spokesman for the jockey guild, said. "They have a better banked and longer curve. What we're concerned about here is this turn. It's too dangerous."

Fellow spokesman Dave King quickly agreed with Ecoffey and added: "They (the owners) are afraid that the elimination of those races will cost them money. Some of the owners only have horses that can go five and a half and can't go six. But, shoot, I didn't see any of them coming up to hospital to visit me or help me pay my bills when I took a spill on that turn and ended up at Lincoln General last year."

Lee reminded the owners that the racing secretary, Dean Williams, had the authority to re-write the conditions of any race under the Nebraska Rules of Racing, specifically rule 13.57 which states: "The Racing Secretary shall have the right to withdraw or change any unclosed race, however, any race appearing in the Condition Book, unless contrary to the Rules of Racing, shall be given a reasonable opportunity to fill as it was written before being withdrawn or changed."

When called for his opinion, Williams said: "The way I see it, it is entirely up to you people (the owners). All I have to do is to take a pencil and re-write the race.

"But the management only wants one four-furlong race a day. The rest will have to go to six furlongs. The jockeys knew," he continued "that there would be five and one-half furlong races here when they came. There has been ever since the track's been here and most of them have ridden here before so they knew what to expect. If they have any complaints, they should take them to the commission in the fall and not now."

Following the final vote where the owners decided to let the condition book stand as it is for the rest of the season, Ecoffey and King both said they didn't believe that some of the owners even knew how they were voting.

"I don't know what the other jockeys will do," King said. "But I don't intend on riding any more of those races." Ecoffey nodded his agreement.

During their meeting Wednesday afternoon, the jockeys voted unanimously to not accept rides for any five and one-half races on Thursday's program or for the rest of the meet. There were no dissenters.

Thursday's card contains three such races with 14 scheduled for the rest of the meet. If the jockeys stand by their decision, those races will have to be re-written.

"This is strictly between the horsemen and the riders," Williams said. "I won't change any of the conditions until the horsemen tell me what they want."

Only three jockeys are under contract to ride in the three races scheduled Thursday — Donna Collins, Randall Meier and Kevin Lintner The jockeys agreed that they should honor their contracts, but since only one race has more than one contract rider in it, that would leave a field of one or two which would necessitate the re-writing of the race distance at scratch time.

"They can't put us on those horses if we won't accept them," King said. "They'll have to change the conditions to where the field has a chance to stretch out a little before we go into that hairpin. We've had too many jockeys injured there the past years to ignore it.

"I know that the racing secretary and other trackmen say that this is the best condition the track's been in for years, but that's because it's dried out more. The turn is still the same. Too dangerous for either riders or mounts."

Henry Brandt, Fairgrounds general manager, said he would be willing to help the owners who have the speedsters and give them one four-furlong race a day in lieu of the five and one-halfs.

"I don't think that will hurt the mutuel handle," Brandt said. "But I would hate to see too many of those short races on any one program.

"I can sympathize with the jockeys on that turn," he added. "I'm going to try for the best conditions I can get. But I think it is a little unfair to the horsemen to try and change in the middle of the stream."

Patsy's Reign Wins State Fair Futurity

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

Paul Kemling made a slight mistake, but everything turned out all right for the Aurora horseman as Patsy's Reign overtook Cowboy Cascio in the stretch run of the $5,970 State Fair Futurity and claimed a three-quarter length victory over the six furlong sprint for 2-year-olds.

"We ran her last Saturday against Rocky Crest," Kemling explained, "when we were saving her for this race. But we thought this race was Friday instead of today (Wednesday) which would have given her about a week's rest.

"That's about what we like to rest our horses," he said, after accepting the traditional winner's blanket from Gov. and Mrs. J. J. Exon. "We don't like to run them this close to each race."

Kemling figured that Cowboy Cascio, topweighted with Doug Schoepf at 119, would be the horse to catch as he had posted two straight allowance victories, one the Kernel Stakes, prior to Wednesday's start at the State Fairgrounds. On that assumption, he ran Patsy's Reigh (114) as part of an entry with Roman Doc (113).

"Roman Doc is a little younger than that filly," Kemling said. "But he's got faster early speed. We didn't want that Cowboy Cascio to get in front and park so we put Roman Doc in to challenge him for the speed.

"We wanted a fast race, but Patsy's Reign has to get going before she can build up speed. She's a late speeder," he smiled.

Fred Ecoffey took Roman Doc away from the gate and kept the 2-year-old colt near the lead most of the way until the pace wore him down. Cowboy Cascio then moved into the lead and held it as the eight-horse field turned down the homestretch.

At that time, Don Stauffer moved Patsy's Reign up to challenge and posted the victory at the wire with Cowboy Cascio finishing second and Sturdy Princess third four and three-quarters lengths back.

"That filly ran big again," Kemling continued. "Just like last Saturday. We thought she was ready, but like I said before, we would've liked a little more rest for her.

"I didn't worry at all when I saw her starting to move past horses on the backside and when she started coming around on the turn, I thought she had the speed to beat him (Cowboy Cascio)," he said.

The win was worth $3,283 to Kemling, boosting Patsy's Reign's earnings to $10,011 while Al and Eileen Cascio collected $1,194 for second and Pat Moylan, et al $716.

Backers in the crowd of 4,680 earned $4.00, $2.20 and $2.20 for Patsy's Reign as the entry went off at even money. Cowboy Cascio, going off at 6-5, returned $2.20 and $2.20 while Sturdy Princess' show finish was worth $2.40.

It was Patsy's Reign's third victory, second straight, out of 14 starts that includes three place finishes.

In Thursday's feature race, Poona Miss has drawn the topweight of 117 pounds over six furlongs for 3-year-olds and older with a claiming price of $7,500-$6,500.

Aunt Priscilla Makes Mistake With Selections

You'd think that your dear old Aunt Priscilla would learn to keep her mouth shut and not jinx herself after all the years she's been betting, but I did it again by crowing about my win Tuesday.

Wednesday at the State Fairgrounds, my two selections finished well back in the field so I lost $4.00 more out of my $108 spree fund Major Roberts finished dead-last in the last race while Bold Diamond did manage a fourth in the fifth.

Aunt Priscilla Loses $4.00

That loss drops me back down to $69.40 but I'm determined to give it another try with $2 win tickets on Glimmering in the fourth and Four Certain in the eighth.

Winter Replaces Ohio St.'s Taylor

Northwestern University coach Tex Winter will replace Ohio State's Fred Taylor and two of Creighton coach Eddie Sutton's assistants will fill in for him next week during the Nebraska Coaches Association Basketball Clinic at Pershing Auditorium.

Taylor underwent major surgery Wednesday at Columbus, Ohio, and Sutton is in Brazil for a tour with the Creighton team.

Clinic director Tom Dineen of Omaha Central High School said Tom Brosnihan and Tom Apke, Sutton's assistants, will take his place in the program.

Coaches Feelings Mixed

By The Associated Press

South Coach Don Johnson was pleased with progress and North mentor Roger Higgins expressed "a little disappointment" after Wednesday's workouts in preparation for the Shrine All-Star football game.

At Fremont, Higgins said his North squad worked with pads during the morning and without the heavy gear during the hot afternoon on the Midland College practice field.

Higgins said bad snaps, fumbles, errant passes, offsides and other offenses marred the afternoon workout after a satisfactory session in the morning.

Higgins said he had moved Jeff Bolin of Albion from split receiver to running back to see if the North can use the Boone County star's speed to better effect.

The coach said Dave Marreel of Fremont, defensive linebacker and offensive guard, was looking good. Others singled out as doing well included both-way tackle Gene Mc Cleary of Calaway and defensive tackle Reed Miller of Scribner.

Johnson said at Doane College at Crete that the coaching staff put in a few more plays Wednesday and things "went pretty well."

A controlled scrimmage is planned Thursday morning.

Johnson said he was pleased overall with his players' work, and standouts have included pass-catching end Steve Tangemann of Omaha South, defensive halfback Kurt Stacey of Lincoln East and Mike Carter, another defensive back from Omaha Central.

'Big Duo' Seek PGA Crown

Cleveland (AP) — Pro golf's new Two — Tom Weiskopf and Australian Bruce Crampton — loom as the top choices with the game's old guard in a catch-up situation going into the first round of the 55th PGA national championship.

The 72-hole test, the last of this year's four major championships, begins Thursday over the lush, 6,852 yards of the old Canterbury Golf Club course with the game's faithful wondering aloud:

"Whatever happened to Jack Nicklaus? And Lee Trevino? And Gary Player? And Arnold Palmer?"

There are a variety of answers—age, illness, personal problems—leading up to one central theme:

They've simply been muscled out of the spotlight by the exploits of the two late-blooming stars who have dominated the game through the peak spring and summer months.

In the last 14 weeks, going back to the Houston Open the first week in May, Weiskopf and Crampton combined have: won half the tournaments, seven; been second three times; third twice; ninth or better a total of 16 times; won in excess of $325,000 in prize money.

Weiskopf won the Colonial National Invitation, Kemper Open, IVB-Philadelphia Classic and the British and Canadian Opens. Crampton captured the Houston Open and the American Golf Classic.

It's the record of a two-man domination that's difficult to match in the recent history of the game.

Weiskopf's heroics have been confined to his last nine starts. In that period he's won five times,finishedsecond once, third two times and fifth. He's won in excess of $200,000 in the period, about the same amount Ben Hogan collected in his lifetime.

Crampton's record has been spread over the entire season. He's won four, finished second in four others, been 10th or better in 14 tournaments. He leads the season's money-winning list with $245,000. Only Nicklaus has ever won more in a single season.

While they've been the central figures in the week-to-week battles on the long pro tour—with Weiskopf also scoring his first major triumph in the British Open—Johnny Miller and Tommy Aaron have slipped through to pick off two plums, the U. S. Open and the Masters.

That left the quartet of Nicklaus, Trevino, Player and Palmer facing a major title shutout for only the second time in 16 years.

But this year has been a bad one for them—at least by their standards.

Doug Sanders, who is suffering from tendinitis in his wrists, and old pro Walter Burkemo withdrew Wednesday.

The final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by ABC-TV.

Bobick Gets KO

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (UPI) — Olympian Duane Bobick of Bowlus, Minn., registered his seventh knockout in seven professional fights Wednesday night when he floored Ned Edwards of Hartford, Conn., at 2:01 of the third round.

Switzer: OU Still Eyes National, Big 8 Titles

Tulsa, Okla. (UPI) — Sooners head football coach Barry Switzer Wednesday said the two-year probation levied against the University of Oklahoma by the Big Eight Conference may keep his team out of the bowls but not out of a run for the national championship.

"I know I'm a fighter, competitor and a winner and I know the people around me are," Switzer told an alumni group.

"Our goal is to win the (conference) championship and the national lead," he said. "We hope the team that represents the Big Eight in the bowls is second best — that they have a loss on record to OU."

The Sooners had been found guilty of 10 football violations, three basketball violations and one general transgression of conference rules. Six of the football violations related to freshman quarterback Kerry Jackson, who was ruled ineligible for play this season.

Jackson's Galveston, Tex., high school records had been altered when he went to OU, which led to the Sooners forfeiting all games Jackson played in last season, including the Sugar Bowl victory over Penn State.

Switzer said he talked to Jackson by phone Wednesday morning.

"He was concerned and still did not understand why," Switzer said. He said Jackson's mental attitude was one of his chief concerns, but he felt the 19-year-old was young enough to take it.

Switzer walked into the alumni meeting with a grin on his face.

"Threw a flag on us, didn't they," he joked.

"I've got to have a smile," he said. "If you're a fighter you just have to back up and take it on.

"We're going to rise to the challenge and meet it. I know we can lick it —it will just take time."

Switzer said an idea of how the team was responding could be gained from a telegram he received during the Tulsa luncheon from players Steve Davis, Scott Hill, Tim Welch and Grant Davis.

"It said they came to OU to play for a champion," Switzer told reporters. "They can't change that. We accept the challenge. That gives you an idea of how our players are taking it."

Devaney 'Sorry' For OU Probation

By Associated Press

Nebraska athletic director Bob Devaney said Wednesday "it's unfortunate" that Oklahoma has been placed on two years probation for football recruiting violations.

"I feel sorry for Oklahoma," said the former Cornhusker football coach, "but violations warrant some penalties."

Devaney, long an opponent of the 1.6 rule for scholastic eligibility, said "it's too bad that a rule that should have never been in the books in the first place helped to cause their problems, but there were some other things, too."

Devaney said the probationary status "probably will be harmful to their programs the next few years, but that would happen to any school in a situation like that."

"I don't feel any glory in winning the Big Eight title on forfeits," Devaney said, "but at the same time, in 10 years, our name will be listed in the books as the champion."

Sheehan Praises

Columbia, Mo. (AP) — Dr. Mel Sheehan, athletic director of the University of Missouri, said Wednesday the Big Eight Conference acted with "good judgment" in the case of the University of Oklahoma.

Oklahoma was placed on probation for two years by the conference for football recruiting irregularities and was declared ineligible for postseason and television appearances.

"The members of the Big Eight who were placed in a position of having to act acted with good judgment," Sheehan said.

He declared the action against Oklahoma would not affect Missouri's athletic budget immediately because television and attendance revenues are not incorporated into the budget.

"We don't spend the money until we know we have it," Sheehan said.

Now We Know Who 'Tattled' On Oklahoma(?)

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Now we know who blew the whistle on the University of Oklahoma for the recruiting violations that resulted in the Big Eight Conference stepping off a penalty against the Sooners Wednesday.

The 24th annual University of Oklahoma Press, Radio and TV Football Guide, produced by OU, is just off the presses and it says OU told on itself.

The opening section of the 120-page book notes that sophomore quarterback Kerry Jackson was "declared ineligible for one year when Oklahoma blew the whistle on itself for a recruiting violation."

A couple of pages later, there is another reference to Jackson losing a year of eligibility "when Oklahoma turned itself in for a recruiting violation."

Sooner Ruling Upsets Walker

Lawrence, Kan. (AP) — Clyde Walker, the athletic director at Kansas University, described Wednesday's disciplinary action against the University of Oklahoma as "something which is bad for Oklahoma and bad for the Big Eight Conference."

Walker said the penalties probably would cause serious recruiting problems for the Sooners, although he said he didn't think league recruiting as a whole would be hurt.

Walker said the loss of television revenue would be an important implication for all schools.

Walker said the Kansas share of lost TV revenue might be as much as $200,000.

Gibson Laments Over OU Ruling

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — "It's a miserable, frustrating experience and I hate to see it happen to anyone," Vince Gibson, Kansas State University head football coach, said Wednesday of the disciplinary action against the University of Oklahoma by the Big Eight Conference.

"I've just been on three years suspension," Gibson said, "and I hate to see it happen to anyone. I know how badly they must feel at Oklahoma."

Kansas State was placed on probation for three years for recruiting irregularities.

UCLA's Harmon Set For NU

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Harmon is on the loose again.

Only thing is, this Tom Harmon goes by his middle name of Mark and plays for UCLA, not Michigan.

"It's a family joke that Dad always called me Mark when I was a kid because he didn't know if I'd like football," says Thomas Mark Harmon. "When I found out I did, I wouldn't let him call me Tom."

The original Tom Harmon was one of college football's greatest running backs for the University of Michigan and won the Heisman Trophy in 1940.

Mark Harmon is about to start his senior year as quarterback of UCLA's explosive Wishbone offense, which set a Pacific-8 Conference rushing record a year ago and finished second nationally.

The 6-foot, 184-pound Californian with the blond, beach boy looks will be on display before a national television audience Sept. 8 when ABC-TV kicks off another season of college telecasts by airing the UCLA-Nebraska game from Lincoln, Neb.

At work up in the TV booth—although not for ABC—will be Tom Harmon, a nationally known sportscaster and the UCLA play-by-play announcer for KTLA in Los Angeles. Fatherly pride probably will be evident.

"He has a tendency to follow me when he should be following the ball," says Mark. "And he doesn't refer to me by name. He calls me 'the quarterback.' It's gotten so he calls me that around the house, too."

Although Mark has followed in his father's footsteps on the football field, it hasn't been on Michigan's field.

"Michigan never approached me until it was too late," recalls Mark, who attended Pierce Junior College in Woodland Hills, Calif., before UCLA. "My choice was between Oklahoma and UCLA. I told UCLA I was coming there on Christmas Day of 1971. Michigan was on the West Coast for the Rose Bowl and the next day Coach Bo Schembechler called me. I went and listened to his sales pitch, but it was too late."

Unheralded coming off a 2-7-1 campaign in 1971, UCLA snapped Nebraska's long unbeaten streak 20-17 in last year's opener with Harmon passing 46 yards for one touchdown and running two yards for another. The defeat virtually ended Nebraska's hopes for a third consecutive national championship.

"I think Nebraska might have underestimated our knowledge of the Wishbone," Harmon admits, "but we had a solid game plan. I've looked at the films of that game a lot and I honestly think we just went out and beat them.

"Last year, we had to play them. This year, they have to play us."

The Hobby's Not Tame!

Eagle — "It's a real hobby rather than a business" for the drivers, said Eagle Raceways co-owner Harvey L. Kropp.

The hobby's not tame though, for he said the supermodified wing sprint cars zoom faster than 100 m.p.h. on the straightaways at Eagle's dirt track.

Power on the cars is "unlimited," Kropp said. "There are no cubic inch limits. They're fuel-injected and use methyl alcohol for fuel." He chuckled, saying the racers are unaffected by the gasoline shortage.

"Most of 'em (the racers) drive here and in Knoxville, Iowa," Kropp said, where purses "can run $25,000" on the half-mile track there.

At Eagle, 10 miles east of Lincoln, the one-third-mile championship races on Labor Day offer a $1,000 purse, he said.

Entrants usually average around 32 at Eagle's Sunday night races. Kropp said, and the drivers' ages range anywhere from 18 to the late 40s.

The cars "run in the $10-15,000 bracket," he explained, and even if a driver won all the purses on the circuit, he still couldn't make half that much. Even so, he said he knows "a California kid who races for a living" and noted, "Guys come in from all over the country."

Exon Dedicates Schuyler Beef Packing Plant Addition

By Ken Gray
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Schuyler — With the first breaking of dirt, Governor J. James Exon welcomed the expansion of the Spencer Foods, Inc. facility here "where Nebraska lives and breathes and produces."

"Nebraska stands on its greatest threshold for economic development," the governor said. Despite President Nixon's Phase 4 ceiling prices on beef and "to show the optimism of all of us, we're here dedicating a new beef facility today," he said.

The ground breaking ceremonies for expansion of the packing plant built here in 1968 took place Tuesday afternoon under the clouded threat of rain.

"We're on the move in Nebraska," Exon told the small crowd of officials, employes and honoraries standing outside the Schuyler facility. "We need to develop more pride in ourselves" and in Nebraska's No. 1 industry, agriculture, Exon said.

Also in attendance at the afternoon ceremony were Congressman Charles Thone, State Sen. W. H. Hasebroock, State Director of Agriculture Glenn Kreuscher and University of Nebraska Chancellor James Zumberge.

The expansion of the plant in this community of 3,700 will provide an additional 175 jobs over the 340 presently employed. The theme at the evening banquet, "The Million Dollar Dinner" of prime beef cuts, reflected the million dollars in additional payroll that the expansion will provide. Currently, the plant's payroll is $3.5 million annually.

"Schuyler is well on its way to becoming a major center for beef and leather production," said Bud Pearson, chairman of the board of Spencer Foods, Inc. in Spencer, Ia.

The expansion will provide "an additional 50,000-square-feet of opportunity for this community and the company," Pearson said.

In his remarks to the dinner guests Tuesday evening, Chancellor Zumberge, who moved to Nebraska 1½ years ago to take his position with the university, said he was looking forward to living in Nebraska and sharing in "the new revolution in agriculture."

Zumberge said the $1 million of new funds granted the college of agriculture by the Regents would be "put into the kind of research that over the years has put this state in the position it is holding" in agriculture.

"The University of Nebraska ought to share in the prosperity" of the state, Zumberge said in a remark directed at Sen. Hasebroock, "because it plays its part in agricultural progress."

'Handicapped Of Year' Award Goes To Leavitt

Berton J. Leavitt, a tool machine designer and checker at Cushman Motors was named "Handicapped Nebraskan of the Year" by Gov. J. James Exon in a presentation Wednesday. Leavitt, who has been deaf since childhood, is currently secretary of the Nebraska Association for the Deaf.

He has spent more than 300 hours this year organizing classes for the deaf at his own expense. Leavitt also served on the Adivsory Council for the Deaf, which reports to the State Board of Education. Leavitt was nominated for the award by the master mechanic at Cushman Motors, H. H. Stoltzman.

The winner in the "ability Counts" essay contest was Mary Buford, a senior at Omaha Northwest High School. She won an all-expenses-paid trip to Washington, D.C., to participate in the national contest. The trip is sponsored by the Nebraska State AFL-CIO.

Vicki Brehm of Columbus won the "Hire the Handicapped" poster contest.

Barbara Rex, Laura Hoefker, and Jamie Costello, all students at Northwest, placed second, third, and fourth in the eassay contest.

Interview Nixed By Ehrlichman

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — Former top presidential aide John Ehrlichman, who testified before the Senate Watergate Committee late last month, apparently has chosen Montana to stop talking to newsmen.

A reporter spotted Ehrlichman Tuesday as he was preparing to stay overnight. Asked for an interview, Ehrlichman replied, "This is a good place to start not giving them right now."

Resources Survey Said Invaluable

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — In 35 minutes Wednesday, the Skylab 2 astronauts gathered information about the earth that scientists said could have taken decades to compile on the ground.

It was the most extensive earth resources photo survey ever attempted.

Astronauts Alan L. Bean, Jack R. Lousma and Dr. Owen K. Garriott focused a battery of power cameras on the earth in a photo-sensing pass that started in the Pacific Ocean, sliced down across the United States, over the Gulf of Mexico and then through Brazil.

They focused on 42 key sites, more tragets than on any other pass, during the 8,400-mile run.

"Everything's going just about perfect," Bean said as they switched on cameras to start the photo survey from their orbiting laboratory.

Scientists said the data from the cameras will be used to search for minerals, help plan urban land use, correct maps, study water run-off and survey crop and forestlands.

"It would probably take ground investigators decades to get the same amount of information as they are gathering," said Dr. Thomas L. Barnett, a space agency scientist.

Photos from Skylab's six cameras will aide studies of Houston's urban development; water run-off and soil moisture in Oklahoma and Texas; atmospheric conditions in the Four Corners area where New Mexico, Colorado, Arizona and Utah meet; forestlands in Colorado; regional planning in several states, and surveys of the Pacific Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico.

Roxcy Bolton

Housewife, Butz Joust In Miami

MIAMI (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz traded jibes with a Miami housewife Wednesday over his alleged characterization of American homemakers as stupid for wanting price ceilings on food.

Roxcy Bolton, a women's liberation activist, confronted Butz during a question and answer period after a luncheon speech by the agriculture secretary on Phase 4 economic guidelines.

Armed with a newspaper clipping, Ms. Bolton asked Butz about a statement attributed to him by the Washington Star-News, criticizing "stupid women and crazed housewives" for urging boycotts during a campaign for a price ceiling on meat.

"As a man married for 35 years, I would never call a woman stupid," Butz shot back, jabbing his finger at the audience.

But he added that meat "hoarding by housewives is misdirected," and claimed the clamor for price ceilings on food caused an economic pinch on farmers which resulted in the "slaughtering of pregnant sows and breeder chickens."

"You're hung up on housewives," Ms. Bolton shouted back, but she was drowned out by applause for Butz from about 200 businessmen attending the luncheon.

After the speech, Ms. Bolton trailed Butz to his car, but he was whisked away by aides and security men.

Earlier, Butz said the real economic problem in America "was not rising food costs but inflation." "You'll get back to a 79 cent roast when you get back to a $1,000 Chevrolet," Butz said.

Citibank: Corporation Profits Rise

NEW YORK (AP) — Corporate profits rose 29 per cent during the second quarter from the year earlier period for the largest year-to-year increase in 14 years, New York First National City Bank said Wednesday.

At the same time Citibank economists said their survey of 1,553 corporations showed a slackening in the year-long advance of profits from quarter to quarter when season variations are considered and accounted for.

"During the second quarter, a growing number of industries began to bump into the rel ceilings on operations imposed by capacity limitations and the artificial ones created by economic controls," the economists said. In addition they noted that a large portion of the increased profits were the result of paper profits from inventory revaluation and dollar devaluation.

Further increases in profits will become more difficult in the coming quarters, the economists said. The price freeze and Phase 4 will make it harder for large companies to get relief from increasing costs, and the widely-predicted slowdown in the economy will probably slow sales and earnings growth, they added.

Paper, nonferrous metals, and petroleum companies led the manufacturing groups with higher proifts, while retail and whosesale trade and mining topped the list of nonmanufacturing groups. Apparel, with no increase of profits on the average, did the most poorly.

Despite the rapid rise in corporate earnings recently, Citibank economists said profits still shared loess of the gross corporate product than they did in the late 1950s and early 1960s. Employe compensation has steadily risen year after year, while the course of corporate earnings has been far more uneven, they said.

Twirling Baton Prevents Crash Of Train, Car

MONTGOMERY, W. Va. (AP) — Margaret Shrout, a college majorette, stood on the railroad tracks and twirled her burning baton to save a stalled automobile from an oncoming freight train.

Miss Shrout, a student at West Virginia Tech, said she was practicing near the tracks Tuesday night "when a lady came running down the street yelling: 'We need a light, we need a light.' "

With Miss Shrout using her blazing baton as a signal flare, the train stopped about 15 feet from her. The car was not hit.

Imperial Girl, 18, Seeks 'Real Mom'

Joan Hiatt

An 18-year-old Imperial girl has issued a plea to Lincoln Star readers to help her find her mother, who might be named Williams.

"My step-mom passed away 11 years ago and I've really never had a real mom," wrote Joan Hiatt, who was adopted in June 1956.

"I'm planning on being married soon and so do wish to see her and talk to her. To be with my real mom at this time would be so wonderful," she wrote.

Miss Hiatt said she was in the "Home of Children" at Lincoln and her birth certificate states her name is Joan Williams. She was born in Lincoln June 13, 1955.

"I'll gladly forgive her," Miss Hiatt wrote. "I'll love her even though she adopted me out. Just to see her is my plea to your readers."

Miss Hiatt said she is 5-foot-3, has blonde hair and green eyes. Her address is Route 2, Imperial.

Boeing Office At Kimball Starting Up Operations

KIMBALL, Neb. (AP)—Boeing Aircraft workers are now beginning to work out of the Kimball dispatch office as work on the Minuteman III missiles begins to move into the western Nebraska area.

The office, which will eventually have some 350 Boeing employes, officially opened August 1.

Boeing Industrial Relations Manager Pete Reilly, based in Cheyenne, Wyo., said about 50 employes were now being dispatched from the office here.

The full force of workers is not expected to arrive until early November.

However, there are many families, who have already moved to Kimball, but drive to work in Cheyenne.

The Boeing work force is expected to reside in this area for about two years while renovation work on the missile sites is completed.

The workers are replacing the old Minuteman I missiles with the newer and larger Minuteman III models.

2 Offer Bids For Library At Kearney

KEARNEY, Neb. (AP)—Only two bids were recieved Wednesday for the construction of the new public library here, and the bids were some $140,000 apart.

The lowest of the two bids, received by the library's board of trustees, was about $50,000 above the architects' estimates.

City officials and the architects commented that in view of the current economic situation, they were very fortunate in getting even two bids.

The apparent low bidder was Roeder Bros. Construction Co. of Kearney.

Their bid was for $641,150.

Only two months ago, the architects had estimated the project at just over $590,000.

Construction is expected to begin in the near future with completion estimated by December 1974.

The board of trustees has 30 days in which to review the bids, and has the option of rejecting both bids and re-advertising for bidders.

A bond issue passed last fall will finance the new split-level structure.

Gas Company To Hike Prices From 1 To 2%

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Northern Natural Gas Co. said Wednesday consumers in the eight-state area it serves can expect an annual increase of one to two per cent in gas bills beginning next year.

The increase will cover higher prices Northern will have to pay for gas in the Permian Basin in West Texas and New Mexico under a new rate schedule approved by the Federal Power Commission Tuesday.

Northern supplies gas to utilities in Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and Illinois.

The schedule more than doubles the ceiling price for gas produced under contracts since Oct. 1, 1968 from 16.5 cents per 1,000 cubic feet to 35 cents. The ceiling price is increased from 14.5 cents to 23 cents on contracts drawn before that date.

A Northern spokesman said nearly half its gas comes from the Permian Basin

Westbound Hay Given Lower Rate

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — The Washington State Agriculture Department has succeeded in negotiating a reduced freight rate for westbound hay from Midwest states to help state ranchers, Director Stewart Bledsoe announced Wednesday.

Bledsoe said Burlington Northern, Union Pacific and Milwaukee Road have agreed to ship hay for $42.60 a ton instead of the usual $60 per ton.

Farmers will be limited to two tons per beef cow and three tons per dairy cow "to keep speculators from making money off the deal," he said.

"This is a substantial concession on the part of the railroads to accommodate the impacted ranchers," Bledsoe said.

"This will be set up through a trust to preclude anybody from making money. This is survival and we are going to operate on that basis."

Hay will come from North Dakota, Minnesota, Kansas and Nebraska, he said.

Kearney Center Hit By Bullets; Probe Asked

Kearney, Neb. (AP) — The Nebraska State Patrol has been asked to investigate an early morning shoting incident Wednesday on the campus of the Kearney Youth Development Center.

YDC Superintendent John McCarty said occupants of a passing car fired at least two shots at Dixon Hall, the institution's maximum security unit.

He said the shos were apparently fired from a shotgun.

McCarty said no injuries were reported, and that the damage was confined to one broken window on the east side of the building.

He said there has been no clues as to who might have been involved

Army Fails To Sign Up Enough Men

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army sharply boosted its recruitment of blacks and of youths with low mental qualifications last month, but still failed to sign up enough volunteers.

Lt. Gen. Robert C. Taber told newsmen that 35 per cent of the Army's recruits in July were black, an increase of 10 per cent over June.

At the same time, he said 31 per cent of all July volunteers scored low in qualification tests, more than double the June figure of 13.6 per cent. More than half of the low scorers are black, Taber said.

But the Pentagon has maintained an official optimism and Deputy Secretary of Defense William P. Clements Jr. carried out this upbeat theme again in the statement. He said that "except for the Army, all services substantially met July recruiting targets at very good quality levels."

The Pentagon's official figures showed that the Army enlisted 13,117 men in July, 76 per cent of its target. This was a poorer showing than in June, when the Army reached 91 per cent of its goal that month.
December.

The Air Force took in 6,220 recruits last month, just over 100 per cent of its target. The Navy recruited 7,866 new men, 97 per cent of its objective, but the objective itself was cut back from 14,200 in June when the Navy fell about 40 per cent short.

The Marine Corps signed up 5,203 volunteers in July, 92 per cent of its goal.

Omaha Mayor Probes City Bid Irregularities

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky said Wednesday he has discovered iregularities in the bid procedures for the purchase of city playground equipment.

The mayor said specifications for the type of equipment needed have been taken from the brochure of the Miracle Playground Equipment Co. He said the local distributor is Emil Churchich, son of Joseph Churchich, the city parks superintendent.

Zorinsky said his office still is investigating and he had no figures on the amount of contracts involved. He said equipment scheduled for bidding had been on the City Council's agenda Tuesday, but it was removed when the discovery was made.

The mayor said he places responsibility on Clarence Shafer, director of parks, recreation and public property.

Zorinsky said no action had been taken against Shafer, but he wouldn't rule out the possibility. The mayor said he wants to investigate further.

The mayor said that using specific model names and serial numbers from Miracle Playground's brochure makes it almost impossible for other manufaccturers to compete because they may not have the precise equipment needed.

He said Miracle Playground appears to have been awarded many city contracts.

Zorinsky said Shafer has been ordered to change the procedure.

Zorinsky said an audit is being conducted of all city departments and "we are finding irregularities elsewhere."

However, he said that does not necessarily mean there has been criminal negligence. He declined to comment on the other alleged irregularities.

Shafer and Churchich could not be reached immediately for comment.

Market Tightens Its Belt

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market tightened its belt Wednesday after some of its recent gains, and analysts said investors needed some psychological nourishment to send them buying.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials lost 9.93, to close at 902.02.

Declines overpowered advances, 1,033 to 382, among the 1,755 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange. Volume was a scant total of 12.44 million shares.

The broad-based NYSE index dipped 0.54 to 56.29.

"There's a lack of incentive for buying, caused in part by the fat yields on a good-grade bonds," said Ronald Cooper of W. E. Hutton & Co.

"On top of that, there's the problem of continuing inflation and the uncertainties about what Phase 4 will bring."

"There are too many negatives and not enough positives," added William Nelson of Moody's Investors Service.

RCA Corp., the Big Board volume leader, lost ⅜ to 24⅝ after a 372,400 share block moved at 24¼. RCA, which had announced earlier that its remuneration from the sale of the company's computer business was higher than expected, said it did not know who owned the block.

Curtiss-Wright, holder of North American rights to the Wankel rotary engine, fell 4 to 24¼ after the Wall Street Journal said the company would not receive royalties from General Motors for use of the Engine. Alcan Aluminum rose ¼ to 33¾, reflecting increased demand for aluminum products.

On the American Stock Exchange, losers led gainers by 2 to 1 in light trading. The pricechange index fell .07 to close at 23.27.

In over-the-counter trading, the NASDAQ composite index closed down 1.17 at 108.13.

Ceiling Falls In On Prisoner Awaiting Trial

OROVILLE, Calif. (AP) — The ceiling came down on prisoner Richard Edward Fike while he was waiting to be tried for robbery.

Deputy Sheriff Joe Morton explained that he heard a loud thump from the holding cell next to the main courtroom Monday.

He found Fike flat on his back under a hole in the ceiling.

Morton said Fike apparently tried to escape by climbing on a table and removing one square of the tile ceiling. But the rest of the ceiling crumbled when he tried to pull his 146 pounds through the hole, Morton said.

Fike was booked additionally on charges of damaging a jail and attempting to escape.

Feminine Impulse

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Federal judges dropped charges against a woman accused of changing her birth date on official documents to make herself appear six years younger. They said her action was just an "understandable impulse of feminine coquetry."

Villagers Cheer Republic

ISTALIF, Afghanistan (AP) — This placid little mountain village sent 80 men to the capital of Kabul to cheer the birth of the Republic of Afghanistan.

Like most of Afghanistan's villagers, however, the people of Istalif didn't know why they were rejoicing. To them, it was something like, "The king is dead. Long live the king."

"We heard about it over our transistor radios," said a turbaned young Afghan, sitting at The Hotel looking across a stream-dissected valley that protects his village.

"They told us about the republic, and said we should be happy. We were happy. The eight sections of the village held meetings and chose 10 men each to go and cheer. But there wasn't a big celebration here."

Many tourists who go to Kabul make the 25-mile trip to Istalif to buy the blue-glazed ceramics for which it is known in the Kabul valley.

Istalif rises up the mountainside from the clear and gurgling streams, which give its citizens water for drinking, washing and bathing. It has no electricity. The Hotel used to have a diesel generator, but it doesn't work any longer.

Tall, silent pines surround the mud-housed village, which once glistened white in the Afghanistan sun. The whitewash wore off, and the villagers lost interest in repainting.

It is a village like thousands of villages in Afghanistan where most people can neither read nor write and earn a dollar a week for their labors.

Yet a bearded merchant, sitting cross-legged in his shop, who had known no other king than Mohammad Zahir Shah, said he was sorry for his deposed monarch, reputedly one of the world's richest men.

Former Premier Sardar Mohammad Daud, a prince in his own right and the king's brother-in-law, overthrew the king July 17 in a military-backed coup. He proclaimed a republic, ending Zahir's 40-year reign. Daud was premier from 1953 until Zahir Shah muscled him out in 1963.

"We were sorry that the king was thrown out like that," the merchant said in Persian. In a country where manhood is revered, an ignominious retreat is to be pitied.

A rope seller sitting nearby interjected, "But we pray to God every day for the success of the republic. We want it to make a better Afghanistan."

In what way?

"We expect three things from the government," the rope seller said. "We want electricity for our village; we want the road paved to the highway; we want better economic conditions for the people of our village."

Suddenly, hopes for Aghanistan become hopes for the village multiplied a thousand times. They are the hopes Daud must deal with to maintain the support of Afghans.

"Frankly speaking, most of the people don't matter in Afghanistan," said a Western diplomat in Kabul. "Their immediate loyalties are to the tribal clans.

I USES MINE ONLY IN CASE OF FIRE.
FROM NOW I'M DEDICATIN' MYSELF TO THINKIN' FOR OTHERS ··· I'LL PUT MY EXTRA BRAIN POWER TO WORK·· CHARGE BIG FEES FOR FORMIN' OPINIONS, DECIDIN' WHEN TO SNEEZE, ETC., FOR BUSY EXECUTIVES.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 8-9
